ALBANY'S SUSPENSE

PROBING REPUBLICAN ROTTENNESS

Another Patriot Narrates His Struggle of Mind Over a Flattering Offer from a Friend—Another Call of the Roll of Members, but with no Result.

ALBANY, June 11.—The bribery investigation committee met again last night, but nothing of importance was elicited.

The committee met at 9:30 this morning.

Frances N. Bangs, of New York, appeared as counsel for the committee. He said he had had no opportunity to consult with the witnesses and felt unfit to enter upon this investigation at this time. He thought the counsel on the other side would agree with him that it would expedite matters if there was a recess taken until this evening, so he could be allowed to prepare himself for the case.

After some discussion Wm. K. Trimble, member of the assembly from the 21st New York district, was sworn and testified that he had had a conversation with a gentleman named Edwards, at his room between 8 and 10 p. m. on Tuesday last. He said Edwards came to my room, walked in and sat down and introduced the senatorial question. He asked me why I continued to vote for Conkling and Platt when there was no chance of electing them? I told him I did not agree with him. He asked me what my expenses were. I said between $2,000 and $2,500. He said if friends of Depew would pay these expenses would I not change my vote; I told him that I would not; that if I changed my vote it would be for other reasons. This conversation was interjected into a general conversation. I understood him to mean by my expenses, my election expenses and expenses here; that was all the conversation I had with him.

To Mr. Brooks—I meant when I told him I would not change my vote unless some arrangement was made, or unless there were some other combination of candidates agreed upon by my party. My opinion of Edwards was that which would be your's or any other honest man's, that he was a rascal.

To Mr. Scott—I have seen this man Edwards several times during the session; don't know his first name.

To Mr. Shanley—I cannot say how I first met Edwards.

To Mr. Scott—I have heard he was a lobbyist.

To Mr. Skinner—I have reason to believe he is.

Mr. Raines, member of assembly from Ontario county, asked permission to ask the witness a question, and he was permitted to hand the question to the committee for consideration.

E. A. Carpenter asked the witness if he was advised to make his statement before the committee rather than rise in the house and make it?

Witness—No, sir.

Carpenter—Did Raines advise you to make the statement here?

Witness—Mr. Raines told me I had better make it to the committee and not in the house.

The committee then adjourned to nine o'clock Monday morning, in pursuance of the resolution which had been previously adopted, with an amendment, to ask permission of the house to sit during its recess.

——There is tremendous excitement here concerning the new and startling developments. The stalwarts are in high feather and the half breeds are looking gloomy. Well they may, for the revelations of the investigation are something that will hurt them badly. Mr. Depew says that the whole thing is a conspiracy to ruin him. He denies that he spent a dollar in buying votes, or authorized any one to use a dollar for any such purposes.

"I want this thing investigated fully," said he, "and I will do all in my power to aid in probing it to the bottom. I am not afraid of the most searching examination that can be made."

Of the four assemblymen from Senator Sessions's district, Samuel H Bradley, Joseph M. Congdon, Milton M. Fenner and A. B. Sheldon, Bradley is the only one who has voted for Conkling. Notwithstanding this terrible blow at their ranks, the half-breeds claim they can still hold their men for Depew.

At the request of a number of journalists, Mr. Sessions gave them the questions which he desired to be put to Mr. Bradley. They are as follows:

1. Did you not tell Mr. Hackman that you had voted for Conkling and Platt for the last time?
2. Did you not tell ex-Assemblyman Ingersoll that you had voted for Conkling and Platt for the last time, and that you would vote for Depew to-morrow?
3. Did you not tell Lyman B. Smith, correspondent of the Buffalo Courier, that it was an outsider who had made you the offer of this money?
4. When Phin Miller asked you who the man was didn't you say to him that you did not want to tell, and that you didn't know whether he was in town to-day or not, as you had not seen him?

Senator Sessions alleges that the latter two reported conversation occurred after Bradley alleges that he had received the money, and after the conversation in the senate.

Mr. Bradley authorizes the following answers to Senator Sessions's questions:

1. I did not tell Hickman that I had voted for Conkling and Platt for the last time.
2. I did not tell Ingersoll that I should vote for Depew hereafter. He has misunderstood what I said.
3. I gave Lyman Smith of the Buffalo Courier, evasive answers. I refused to talk with journalists about the matter.
4. When Miller asked me whether the man who gave me the money had skipped. I told him that I did not think he was in a position to skip. I told him that I had not seen him to-day, although I had done so. I was giving him an evasive answer to get rid of him."

Bradley, who makes the charges of bribery, is one of the most insignificant of the country members in the legislature, and a man possessed of little brains. On the first day's voting he named Cornell and White; on the first three joint ballots, his candidates were Ward and Fenton; but last Friday, on the fourth ballot, he went over to the bucks, and has voted for Conkling and Platt on every succeeding ballot when present. He is the only accession the machine has received since the contest opened. The appointment of the investigating committee has been strongly criticised. Mr. Brooks, the mover of the resolution, is named fifth in the list, while a strong half-buck, Scott, was put in as chairman. Draper and Carpenter are ultra-Conkling men. Boardman is a wobbler. Brooks and Shanley represent the democrats, while Skinner is the only out-and-out administration man among the lot.

——The joint convention met at noon, president pro tem, Mr. Robertson presiding, and proceeded to vote to fill the vacancy in the United States senate, caused by the resignation of Roscoe Conkling.

The result of the vote was as follows:

Jacobs	9	Conkling	23
Wheeler	19	Rogers	14
Cornell	8	Tremaine	4
Folger	1	Lapham	7

No choice.

The convention then voted for senator to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Thomas C. Platt, with the following result:

Platt	22	Depew	38
Cornell	7	Kernan	29
Folger	3	Crowley	2
Lapham	2

No choice. The convention adjourned to 12 m. Monday.

NEW YORK, June 11—An evening paper says that ex-Senator Platt made a flying visit to his home at Owega after leaving Albany. Conkling soon after breakfasting left the hotel, and later went to the office of the law firm with whom he is engaged in elevated railroad cases. He did not meet any local politicians but told one of his associate counsel that he was now convinced that there would be no successor to himself elected by the present legislature. As to the bribery cases, he said there were a number to be heard. Mr. Conkling said also that he would return to Albany next week and would fight the matter out to the bitter end. He thought now the better way would be to allow the voters to pass upon the question at the fall elections

Special dispatch to The Constitution.

Ex-Senators Conkling and Platt, it is understood, will return to Albany to-morrow or next day to continue the contest. It is stated that the stalwarts will endeavor to put the half-breeds on the defensive on the bribery question. The rumor is denied that General Grant will go to Albany to aid in the struggle for the ex-senators. A stalwart leader said that by going to Albany Grant would work more harm than good, and compromise himself in many ways. He could do more service by coming to New York and presiding over a public meeting indorsing the nomination of Conkling and Platt and their candidacy for re-election. Senator Birdsall, a half breed leader, gave it as his opinion that Depew's vote would be materially increased during the coming week, and that the stalwarts would eventually be broken up.

Trouble Over Land Titles.

LOUISVILLE, June 11.—A special to the Courier-Journal says that Sloan's valley, Cumberland mountains, on the line of the Cincinnati Southern railway, is full of people engaged in the tanbark business. Disputes and contentions over titles to land are of constant occurrence. A Mr. Gorey, of Lexington, who works about 500 hands, and Cution & Wray, of Danville, are quarrelling over a large survey, and it is reported that the hands of each are carrying guns, and are daily expecting a deadly conflict. Matters at this time are looking quite serious.

KNOWN TO THE PEOPLE OF GEORGIA

The Life and Deeds of Jonathan Norcross—What He Has Done for Atlanta in the Past—A Talk with the Grizzled Veteran on Georgia's First Railroads.

Written for The Constitution.

ATLANTA, June 4.—Probably nine men out of ten in Atlanta know Mr. Jonathan Norcross.

By this I mean to say that his tall bent figure surmounted with a beaver hat—his strong, grizzled face with its forceful lines and its searching direct look—his strenuous voice, easily lifted in debate and pat as an echo in replication—that nearly all these are familiar to nearly every man in this great city.

But there are few who have any idea of Mr. Norcross's history—few who know how intimately his life has been wove in with that of Atlanta—how for long years before many of us were born he defended the rights of a hamlet—how with a faith that never wavered, he proclaimed the future greatness of the gate city, when he stood in the heart of a wilderness and the town-folks of Marietta and Decatur laughed him to scorn He is one of the strongest links between the past and present of this city. On three occasions at least, he has of himself, in my opinion, determined the future of Atlanta, and each time his decisive influence has been cast for her good. A hard fighter in everything—a man of direct method and perfect integrity—those who condemn him as a fanatic in politics should remember that he has always been a fanatic in Atlanta's behalf, when his friends were few and timorous, and has maintained his opinions fearlessly, honestly and sincerely. No one can study the early history of this town without feeling his breast warm to the gray old veteran who, halting midway between two flourishing towns, foresaw a city in the heart of a wilderness, and planting his feet there with admirable courage and obstinacy, bent down against and turned away persuasion. It is a tribute to the man's character to say that if the wilderness were yet a wilderness he would still be found there—so firm was his belief in the locality when he first came upon it.

I met Mr. Norcross yesterday, and asked him if he hadn't seen a great many railroad booms in Atlanta, and whether he had ever seen one to equal the present.

"Atlanta," he said, "is emphatically a city of railroads, and the history of her railroads is the history of the city. I suppose I know more about the railroads of Atlanta than any man living. When I came to Georgia from Maine in 1836, there was not a foot of railroad being run in Georgia. Indeed, when I reached Augusta I found the whole population going out to a celebration. The occasion of this was to see the first locomotive ever brought into the state of Georgia put on the track of the Georgia road, then just begun, under Richard Peters, locating engineer. I saw it pulled out, and with that I saw the first locomotive wheel that ever turned on Georgia soil. At that time the stage coach was the only means of travel in the state."

"When did you come to Atlanta?"

"In 1845. I had first settled in Putnam county, and rode across on horseback."

"Give us a picture of Atlanta as it appeared to you when you first saw it?"

"There was hardly enough of it to make a picture of. It was all heavy woods, with about a half dozen clearings in which probably six houses were set. The families then living here were Major Terry's, Mr. Bryant's, James Collins's and Mr. Gill's. This was all I believe. It was a high, ridgy place, and looked healthy, so I determined to try it. Marietta and Decatur were then pretty considerable towns, and nobody, except Major Terry and myself, thought a city could ever be built up between them."

"What railroads did we have then?"

"The railroad situation was very discouraging. There was a little piece of the State road built from Marietta to Atlanta, but there were no cars on it, and only one little engine. This had been hauled to Atlanta in a wagon, and had not been running in two years. There was a little rock shanty that served as a depot, standing in front of where the Kimball house now is. There was a little repair shop about where Dodd's store now is.

"This dullness was broken by the coming of the Georgia road. This road had been built from Augusta to Athens, and then to Madison and Covington. From Covington it was extended to Atlanta, and the first train reached us in September, 1845. It was an occasion of great excitement for the few people then living here. Mr. John P. King was on the first train, and came very near being killed. There was a large open well near the depot, and when the cars came rolling up, the excitement was so great that a man fell in the well, was drowned, and nobody knew it till the next morning. Mr. King himself stumbled and very nearly fell in the well, but was caught by a by stander. The coming of this train gave Atlanta her first "railroad boom," and we thought then that we were fixed for good. The building of the State road had been recommenced, so that we had two roads. Then we had stage lines running to Griffin and beyond, and to Newnan, LaGrange, Montgomery and New Orleans, under control of Dick Peters. The arrival of the stages every evening in those primitive days was the great occasion of the day. Mr. Peters made a great deal of money, by carrying the Mexican war travel over those very stages, and much of it was carried through Atlanta."

"Why was it that the State road stopped at Atlanta instead of going to Decatur?"

"That brings up a point that I want to discuss. A great many people think Atlanta was an accident. Nothing could be farther wrong. It was made a city because of its location. If you will study a map you will see that Atlanta is situated at the meeting point of three great ridges. These three ridges are occupied by the Georgia, the Macon, and the State road, and the West Point road is on the spur of one of them. In following these ridges the roads of course converged to the meeting point of the ridges—and that point is the place that I selected for a great city nearly forty years ago, and is where Atlanta sits to-day.

"It was a curious thing, but the very men who built these two roads to Atlanta thought that Marietta would be the future city. Mr. Long and Mr. Garnett, both the engineers of the State road, bought in Marietta on speculation and hooted at the idea that "Terminus" would ever catch up with it. George W. Crawford bought in Marietta, and so did every one else who settled in this section, except Major Terry and myself. We stuck to it that the great distributing city must be placed at the point at which the ridges met and from which they radiated."

"After the Georgia road, what was the next step in Atlanta's railroad development?"

"The building of the Macon and Western. This road had been started from Macon as the Monroe road and had failed. It was then taken in hand by another company and was finished to Atlanta. This was in 1847, and it gave us our second 'railroad boom,' and it was tremendous, I can tell you. This was the time that the first railroad whistle was ever heard in Atlanta. The engines on the Georgia and State roads were little fellows without any whistles. But the engine on the Macon road had a real whistle, and it made a great stir when it was first heard in Atlanta."

"Sounded mighty nice to you, didn't it?"

"Nice? Why, you don't know. I never shall forget it. It was a clear, calm night, and the whistle commenced blowing way out by the White hall. I lived near where the West Point depot now stands, and the minute I heard it I started on a full run for up-town, waving my hat above my head and shouting. Lord! it just lifted us out of our boots. It was a good, large whistle—none of these little penny pipes—and it could be heard everywhere. When I got to the depot I found everybody in town was there, and there was more enthusiasm than I ever saw in Atlanta. The engineer blew the whistle for all who wanted to hear it, and it was late before the crowd dispersed."

"This railroad boom helped the city along, didn't it?"

"Oh yes, there was probably 12 new houses built on the strength of it, and several people moved into the town. I believe that the real growth of Atlanta began right then. For the first time people began to have confidence in our judgment about it."

"There was a great fear that the Macon road would hurt us rather than help us. We were afraid that it would spoil our wagon trade and carry the produce and trade of the country around us to Macon and Savannah. Right then out of that necessity was born the jobbing trade of Atlanta. Macon was a great deal the largest place, for we still had but a few houses, probably fifty in all. We knew that we had to fight for our trade or lose it, and commenced bidding for it. We got our supplies from East Tennessee through Charleston, and we soon found that the Macon road had helped us instead of hurting us. From that time forward we moved on with more confidence."

"Who had furnished the money to build these roads?"

"The state furnished the money for the State road. The money to build the Macon and Western after the failure of the old Monroe road came from Holland, through the influence of the New York houses that bought it up. The Central was built by Savannah and New York money. The Georgia road was the only one that was built entirely with the money of Georgia subscribers. No money was imported for this."

"This was an interesting period of Atlanta's history?"

"Yes, and it is strange how history repeats itself. Just about then we had our first trouble from a railroad "pool." The Georgia and Central had been fighting each other, and we had the benefit of the competition. Just about then a "pool" was formed between them, and we lost all the benefit of the competition. It raised a howl and we fought it, but it was a long time before we broke it. That was the first fight over a "pool" in Georgia history. At the coming of the Macon road we had our first fight over the location of the depot, a fight that has been repeated many times since. President Tyler, of the Macon road, insisted on putting the depot above where the State road shops now are, and this served us pretty bad as the town was way below it. We all got after Mitchell and he donated grounds for depot buildings and then Tyler gave in. I suppose he only wanted to secure his depot grounds cheap. This grant was the origin of the Mitchell heirs' litigation."

"After the Macon road came the West Point, didn't it?"

"Yes, and right there was a serious crisis in Atlanta's history. The West Point road was projected by the Georgia road, and their first idea was to have it run from Covington. This was the definite purpose and for some time it was considered pretty well settled that it was to be so. Of course the idea was that the Georgia road would force the State road freight intended for the West Point road down to Covington, and thus get a haul on all all this freight. I appreciated the fact that Atlanta was the natural railroad center, but was equally sure that if the West Point road went to Covington that our prestige was gone. In discussing the new road, and appealing for help to build it, a new element was introduced into the corporation, viz: a large number of wealthy planters along the line of the road, especially about Newnan and LaGrange. I commenced writing articles for the papers, showing that Atlanta was the meeting point of the ridges that must bring the railroads, and that it would be the great city of the future. I printed these articles in every paper that would take them, and canvassed the matter thoroughly. When the convention was finally held at Newnan, the stockholders voted to build it direct to Atlanta. When this was done, I felt that the future of the city was assured beyond question. From this time on there was little trouble."

"How was the Air Line first started?"

"The Air Line road grew, probably, out of a very queer sort of craze that we had in the old days. This was the mania for plank-roads—several plank-roads were actually built, and it was thought that they would take the place of railroads in great part. In Atlanta we felt the necessity of a connection with northeast Georgia, and I made a canvass of the upper part of the state for a plank-road between Atlanta and Dahlonega. In this canvass I made a speech at Warsaw at the residence of Colonel Clark Howell, where a big barbecue was prepared for me, and at which Evan Howell, a chit of a boy then, was playing about the yard. I succeeded in raising a good deal of stock, when it was demonstrated that the plank-roads were not suitable to southern climate, and they were abandoned. The Air Line road was the outcome of this movement, and the charter was obtained in 1856. This charter was obtained after great difficulty by a sort of accident. The Georgia and Central roads were just then all-powerful in Georgia. A movement was made, at the same time we moved for the Air-Line, to get a charter for a road from Warrenton to Macon. The Georgia and Central folks helped us with the Air-Line charter in the hope of killing the Warrenton charter. When this object was removed they fought the Air-Line bitterly, and with the coming on of the war, succeeded in defeating its building for the time. After the war it was organized under our old charter, and put through in the manner that is familiar to our people."

"Now," said Mr. Norcross, smiling, "I have given you a history of Atlanta's railroad enterprises, and her railroad importance, up to the present 'boom.' One thing must impress you, as it has always impressed me, and that is, that Atlanta owes more to railroads than to any other influence, or perhaps all other influences combined."

"Wasn't the location of the West Point road the most critical period in the history of the city?"

"No, sir. Why, when I was fighting the battle for that road with the help of a few men, I believe a majority of the people of the city were opposed to what I was doing. They said they didn't want the railroad, and stood out on the old complaint that it would hurt the wagon trade. I would like to hear some of those men who live in the city give an opinion as to whether or not the West Point road has hurt the city.

"The most critical point in Atlanta's history was when it was under the dominion of the railroad pool of Georgia. The Georgia and Central roads controlled everything in the state, except the State road, and they were working everything for Savannah and Augusta. When Herschel V. Johnson was elected governor he made Wadley superintendent of the State road, and then we were in a box. The three roads were then in control of the pool, and Atlanta was literally cut out of competition. We could actually ship Tennessee bacon to Augusta and back to Atlanta cheaper than we could stop it at Atlanta. This I know, from experience, to be a fact. It was the worst time Atlanta ever saw."

"What broke this combination?"

"The election of Joe Brown as governor. He put the State road in the hands of Lewis, and had it run on a schedule that gave Atlanta justice. Then our best growth began, and we were soon a city."

I could fill columns with the reminiscences of this old veteran, but time's up! and I stop for the present. I may find time to describe in a future letter how Mr. Norcross, as mayor, was besieged in his house by a mob, and a cannon turned on him and his surrender demanded. When I do I will show that he fought out the fight then as always, and won as great a moral victory for Atlanta as was his material victory when he fought the fight for the West Point terminus and the Air-Line charter. WESTERN CYCLONE.

A Destructive Rain and Hail Storm in Kansas.

ABILINE, Ks., June 11.—A storm accompanied by rain and hail struck Solomon Valley last evening at five o'clock. At Beloit, a great deal of glass was broken out of windows, but the fury of the cyclone was greatest at Solomon City, where nearly all the glass was broken from the north windows and a number of houses were destroyed. No lives were lost. Four miles northwest Dennis Morgan and sister were instantly killed, and their house totally destroyed. At Berington, on the Valley road, 12 miles northwest of Solomon City a farmer named Frothingham, his wife and a hired hand were killed, and the house completely demolished. In the same vicinity, three stone farm houses were blown down, but the inmates were in the cellars and escaped fatal injuries. A large number of houses and barns along the valley between Solomon City and Minneapolis, a distance of twenty miles or more, were blown down, but further loss of life is not yet reported. Hailstones came down very thick, some of them larger than walnuts, and contained in the center small pebbles. The cyclone did not extend as far east as Abiline, but rain and hail came down for about twenty minutes at a lively rate, and the damage to window-glass is considerable. The cyclone proper was funnel-shaped, the small end downward, and at times, as it moved on its forward course, the heavy top would careen over toward the east and large jets shoot out in various directions. The display lasted about twenty minutes, and the storm about one hour. The damage to houses and crops is heavy.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Additional particulars of the tornado in Kansas night before last are that the storm extended into Lyon county and did great damage to crops, buildings, fences, etc., all over that part of the country. The town of Americus, near Emporia, is almost entirely destroyed every building in it being more or less damaged. The United Presbyterian church was literally torn to pieces, and the Methodist church was blown from its foundation and almost totally destroyed.

Several houses in Emporia were blown down and fences and other property seriously injured. The north and east additions to the state normal school were unroofed and the walls partly torn down. Wheat just ready for harvest and other crops everywhere in the track of the storm were either blown away or beaten into the ground by the hail, immense quantities of which fell during the storm. Southwest Missouri seems to have been visited by the same storm.

The wind was not so severe but immense hailstones fell over a large area of country and did great damage to crops and window glass. A waterspout broke in a little valley in Barry county in which is situated the town of Seven Star Spring and before the people could reach the surrounding hills a torrent of water rushed down, taking with it houses, tents, household goods and animals belonging to those living near the springs. Three women, a man and seven small children were swept away by the flood, but fortunately they all lodged in bushes and were rescued some hours later.

The New Hampshire Senatorship.

CONCORD, N. H., June 11.—The opinion of the state supreme court on the question whether the existing legislature has the power and right to elect a person to represent the state in the senate of the United States for the term beginning March 4th, 1883, which was sent to the senate yesterday, recites that the next legislature having no existence until June, 1883, cannot elect a senator for the full term of six years, beginning March 4th, 1883. Therefore the refusal of the present legislature to elect a senator for that term would be a violation of the constitutional right of the state to be represented by two senators—"chosen by the legislature thereof for six years;" such refusal leaving the state three months represented by only one senator chosen by its legislature would be as plainly unconstitutional as similar refusals leaving the state for all time without a senator so chosen.

FOREIGN FLASHES.

RIOTING REPORTED FROM CORK.

An Unhealthy State of Affairs in Ireland—The People in a Demoralized State, and the Officials Powerless—Archbishop Croke's Advice to the People.

CORK, June 11.—The rioting here Thursday night originated in the police arresting eight persons who were concerned in a drunken disturbance at the races. What followed was the result of an attempt to rescue the prisoners which gave the mob a favorable opportunity for attacking the police. The feeling of the roughs against the police and soldiers was shown by the frequent brutal assaults upon individuals found alone.

LONDON, June 11.—The Times remarking on the growth of lawlessness in Ireland says one experiment which is most obvious and most certain to succeed remains untried. If one mob of Fenians or land leaguers, or of whatever other title, were just for once not suffered to have its own way, its appeal to force met and overcome, and if the mob were dispersed and forbidden to reassemble, the consequences might be happy in the extreme. One victory of the law would be a signal for others. Objections to such an experiment are obvious but not conclusive. A forcible disposition of the mob in Ireland would be certainly followed by a howl of execration from their parliamentary friends and champions. The Irish press, which is silent over the injuries to the police, would be eloquent in the case we are now supposing, but the land league would receive something very like its death-blow, and might itself fall into the contempt with which the law is now treated in Ireland.

CROKE'S ADVICE

To the People of Ireland—Discussed by the Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—A Dublin dispatch states that Archbishop Croke's conference with the clergy and land league is discussed by all the papers The archbishop was received at the Limerick Junction railroad station at noon, and escorted to Tipperary by the members of the local league, headed by a brass band. A mile from the town the horse was taken from the carriage and he was drawn by the people through the main streets. His grace ascended a temporary platform outside the church and addressed an assemblage of 4,000 persons, thousands more filling the streets out of sight of the speaker. The chairman of the town commissioners read an address from the people of Tipperary and adjoining parishes. The archbishop, in the course of his speech, said: "This old land of ours has special claim upon the love and devotion of her children. She has had troubled times ever since she sprang out of the ocean. Once the chief civilizer of western Europe, she has suffered from the ruthlessness of the Dane as well as from the rapacity of the Saxon. Her history presents all the continuity of an epic, and though many times defeated, she has never been subdued We see her on her legs again to-day, fresh and fearless, and I trust invincible. [Cheers] The only arms she intends to use are organization and enlightened public opinion. It appears to me that two things only can prevent her from achieving a material victory and gathering its most ample fruits. These two things are mismanagement or disunion on the part of the leaders of the people, and indiscretion or something worse on the part of the people themselves. By the leaders of the people I mean the advanced parliamentary party in the house of commons, with their immediate followers, headed, of course, by the immortal Parnell. [Immense cheers] I earnestly trust and pray that they will be equal to the occasion, but their policy for the next two years must be one of judicious flexibility as well as of firmness. They must be firm in their determination not to accept the bill now before the house of commons unless it shall come out of the committee in such shape as to render it a clear, substantial boon to the tenant farmer of Ireland. At the same time they must be most careful not to imperil the measure by voting against it, if some minor amendments are not incorporated. Though the bill is not believed to be perfect, I say the bill ought to be accepted, not as a final settlement of the land question, but as conveying a large installment of justice and as calculated to effect needful improvement in the condition of the tenant farmers of Ireland. [Cheers] With regard to the people themselves, they, too, must put themselves under slight restraint during these days of great national excitement, and while they are fully determined not to submit to extortionate and obviously unfair rents, the payment of which, even when possible, can only be made by the sacrifice of themselves and their children, they must make up their minds to meet their engagements as honest men and turn to the best possible account the provisions of the bill when it has passed into law. Under all circumstances bill or no bill, the people must take care not to bring themselves into dangerous collision with the armed forces of this great empire. If you should do so, what will be the issue? I recommend the people to be conspicuous by their absence for the future wherever the police or military appear in large numbers, whether to evict a tenant or sell a farm. Opposition can do no good. Hooting and stone throwing may become a very dangerous pastime, and I recommend and adjure the people to abstain from the practice, for independently of the danger, it is an unmanly style of warfare. He who commits a crime gives strength to an enemy, but the government may commit a crime. It is a crime to punish a man who has commetted no offence What crime has the tenant committed, who, from adverse circumstances, can't pay his rent? [Loud cries of "none," and cheers] I want it to be clearly understood that with those who can pay a fair rent and will not I have no sympathy. What crime, let me ask, have those men committed who are now paying the penalty in jail? [Loud cries of Dillon, Davitt and Father Sheehey]. It was a boast of England that if she was not the cradle, she was the nurse of liberty, but it outrages our sense of liberty and fair play when a man is punished as guilty, when his guilt has not been proved It is an old Roman maxim that no man should be presumed guilty of an offense unless the offense has been proved against him. This maxim is in direct opposition to British law at present. There are more political offenders in prison in Ireland to-day than in any other civilized country in the world, except Russia, and there is not one of those political prisoners who would be convicted of any crime before an honorable court and impartial jury.

The Irish Times, commenting on the archbishop's address, says: "This frank, bold counsel can hardly fail to exert great effect upon the leadership of the Irish party. It offers them a fresh opportunity for a really new departure. Parnell has, in his latest manifesto, said as nearly as possible the opposite of all this, but the time has evidently come for restraint. The policy of exasperation promises less for the people every day. The archbishop wishes to take the movement out of the hands of the bitterest and least prudent of its apostles, and the people are prepared by repeated disappointments and confusion of mind and failure of hope for this new leading"

The Freeman's Journal says: "The archbishop's references to the land bill were in their every word weighted with sound sense, true patriotism and practical wisdom. The time has come for Ireland to determine her attitude toward the land bill. She could have no better adviser than the archbishop and no wiser counsel than that which he gives her. The advice of his grace to Ireland and the Irish party is to confine all their efforts to improving the land bill instead of opposing or obstructing it. As Archbishop Croke has truly said, the time has come for plain words, and we must say plainly that we hold that the passing of a good land bill at this moment, would be a most enormous boon for the Irish people."

THE POWDER POLICY

That Seems to Have Scared the People of Liverpool.

LONDON, June 11.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Chester reports that the police have received a communication from the government stating that the Fenians, in America, have detailed a number of men to destroy buildings in various cities in the United Kingdom, including Chester.

LIVERPOOL, June 11.—McKevitt is a native of Warren Point, county Down. He was employed as a dock laborer in Liverpool since 1870. Roberts is a native of Glasgow, and of Irish parentage. The examination of the men captured in the attempt to blow up the town hall yesterday morning, took place to-day. The prisoners were charged with damaging the building with intent to commit murder, also with laying an explosive with intent to damage the building. The man who at first gave his name as Roberts, has, since his arrest, given it as McGrath. A strong force of police was present at the examination. Only persons having business were admitted to court

NEW YORK, June 11.—O'Donovan Rossa denies all knowledge of the men arrested in Liverpool for attempting to blow up the town hall, and says the undertaking was not instigated by the Fenian brotherhood in America, or he would have known all about it, but he says he is sure the plot grew out of the same spirit that animates the organization of which he is a member.

Rossa is editor of the United Irishman, and he says the books of that paper shows the name of McKevitt, of Liverpool, as one of its agents, and he is of the opinion that whatever document referring to him was found on McKevitt when arrested, was connected solely with the business of his newspaper.

TEXAN TOPICS.

Murders, Robberies and Arson.

GALVESTON, June 12.—The News' special from Graham says J. E. Martin, a prominent merchant of Belknap, was called out of his residence night before last by three unknown men who led him half a mile away and shot him. The men then proceeded to Martin's store, robbed it of all they could carry off, and escaped under cover of a furious storm at the time prevailing.

A special to the News from Gainesville, Texas, says that last Friday evening the stage of the Overland transportation company was robbed while passing through Black Hollow, thirteen miles from here, by masked men, who obtained a small amount of money from the passengers and one thousand dollars from the mails. W. E. Smith, mail agent, yesterday arrested W. R. Brown, a well-known stock man in Montague county. He is believed to be the guilty party.

GALVESTON, June 11.—A special dispatch from Marshall, Texas, to the News says in the district court yesterday R L Jennings was acquitted of killing W. S. Cabman.

CINCINNATI June 11.—A special from San Antonio reports ten men killed in the southwest in a fight between the rangers and a band of cow thieves. There are no details.

THE PENITENTIARY COMMITTEE

Will Recommend a Commission for the Convicts.

For three weeks a legislative committee composed of T. W. Milner, chairman, Messrs Zellner, Willington, Port, Perkins, Coffin, and Wilson has been investigating the convict camps of Georgia. This committee, composed of three doctors, two lawyers, a preacher, and a colored member (Wilson, of Camden,) was intrusted with the investigation between sessions and ordered to report fully.

The committee has been three weeks en route, has visited every camp, talked with over 1,00 prisoners, and examined every feature of the great question intrusted to them. They will not talk much of what they have seen, but this much may be said:

The committee is not satisfied with the system as it is at present, and without having special complaints to bring against any lessee, feel that justice cannot be done, and the dictates of humanity followed under the system as it is. The committee will therefore unanimously report in favor of a penitentiary commission, to be composed of a lawyer, a business man and a physician, to be paid liberal salaries and selected from the very best men in the state—as the railroad commission has been. The committee will insist mainly that this commission is essential, and many of the committee, probably a majority, will advocate the appointment of a warden for each camp. This is the most thorough investigation of the camps ever made, and will probably result in definite action.

Contesting Cannon's Seat.

SALT LAKE, U. T., June 11.—Learning that Clerk Adams disregarded Governor Murray's certificate, had placed Cannon on the roll of members of the house of representatives, Mr. Campbell yesterday brought suit in the third district court here to establish the fact that Cannon is not a citizen; was incapable of becoming one at the time he claims to have been naturalized; to annul and declare void the bogus certificate of naturalization, upon which he depends, because it was fraudulently obtained; is not part of record of any court, but is such certificate as was often sold in those times, nearly thirty years ago, by clerks for $5, without any proceedings being had. In court it will be shown that when Cannon's certificate purports to have been issued he had not resided in the country five years or one year and was therefore not entitled to be naturalized under the states and this certificate besides being void on its face in the absence of any legal record of his naturalization is void because no court could legally have issued it in that time even if it had so desired.

The Faster Griscom.

CHICAGO, June 11—At noon to-day John Griscom, at the end of his second week's fast, weighed 175 pounds, a loss of 1½ pounds, in the last 24 hours, during which his only nourishment was 32 ounces. In 2 weeks he has lost 22¾ pounds. To-day he appears bright and cheerful and does not complain of any ill effects from his self imposed fast. His pulse was regular at 72, temperature 99 1-10, respiration 18.

Death of a Moonshiner.

CINCINNATI, June 11.—A special from Nashville, Tenn., says John Welet, a notorious moonshiner, who nearly killed Revenue Officers Davis and Campbell early last December, and who was captured by Davis on Waldrea's ridge, near Spring City, Tenn., about May 28th, and shot while attempting to escape, died of his wounds in the Nashville jail this morning.

The Baltimore Mayoralty.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 11.—Wm. Pinckney Whyte, ex-United States senator, was to-day nominated by the democratic conservative party as their candidate for mayor of this city. Mr. Whyte had been previously nominated by a half-breed party of gentlemen styling themselves the committee of one hundred. The election takes place in October.

Death of a Traveler.

Special dispatch to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Secretary Windom arrived to-day and was introduced on 'change at noon in company with Mayor Harrison and other prominent citizens, and was received with every manifestation of friendship and enthusiasm. He made a five minutes' address.

Renewed Earthquakes.

GENEVA, June 10—A very perceptible earthquake shock in the valley of Upper Rhone on Thursday extended as far as this city.

Mrs. Grant's Illness.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Mrs. Grant, who has been quite ill since her arrival here, is reported considerably better to-day, and will probably be well enough to leave for Galena to-morrow.

Evacuating Peru.

LONDON, May 11.—Advices from Buenos Ayres, dated May 15th, received by way of Lisbon to-day, announce that the Chilians are withdrawing from Peru.

Politics in Cobb.

An election will be held in Cobb county Tuesday for a member of the house of representatives to fill the unexpired term of General A. J. Hansell, lately deceased. There are but two candidates before the people—Mr. C. H. Anderson, a prominent and successful merchant and farmer, of Powder Springs, and a Mr. McCleskey, who lives on the Roswell side of the county. Marietta and Acworth have no candidates in the field and it appears that the towns have determined to stand aside and let the two wings of the county manage the contest. Mr. Anderson is personally one of the most popular men in the county and for thirty years has held the entire confidence of the people of the county where he has lived, and pursued the even tenor of his way for that length of time. He has proven himself to be a citizen of high moral and social worth, and in the dark days of the war he never for an instant was known to lag when duty called. He has ripe experience, honesty, integrity, and sound judgment, and would prove of immense benefit to the people were he chosen to represent Cobb county in the legislature. When his friends consider all these advantages, they grow confident that he will sweep the field and go in by an overwhelming majority.

He has never asked for an office before and is running now at the earnest solicitation of his numerous friends, who are anxious to honor him with the office and secure to the county the benefit of his ripe judgment on matters which pertain to the interest of the people.

Colored Military.

To day the Rome Star Guards will reach Atlanta on a special excursion, to be the guests of the Governor's Volunteers, who, under Captain Jackson McHenry, are amply prepared to capture their visitors. To-morrow will be a great day for the local and visiting colored military. There will be a parade of the Atlanta and Rome companies, after which a target practice for some handsome prizes will be had. The companies will form at 2:30 p.m. in front of the capitol and then after a parade will proceed to Silver Spring park where the target contest will occur. At night there will be a grand anniversary entertainment at Turn Verein hall. The occasion will be the second anniversary entertainment of the Guard.

Back Home Again.

Mr. John H. James and family returned from an extended tour through the west yesterday. About one month ago Mr. James accompanied by his wife and two children left Atlanta for a pleasure tour and from his conversation since his return it is to be presumed that he found what he sought. During his absence Mr. James visited Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Colorado, Kansas and California. In San Francisco he was drenched by the first rain that has fallen in that city during the month of June for years past. After a careful examination of different sections through which he passed Mr. James says he prefers Atlanta to them all.

Tallulah Falls.

This excellent summer resort is now ready for the reception of guests. Among those already there are; Mrs. Cotting, Mrs. J. F. Burke, Mrs. Brock, Mr. Cunningham and family, Mr. Jeter and family, Mrs. Raines and children, of Atlanta, Mr. Rainey and wife, of Kingston, and Mr. Trippe, wife and daughter, of Forsyth. A wonderful curiosity is a mountain about five miles from the falls, which has sunk fifty feet. The sunken place covers an area of thirty or forty acres.

Capwell Heard From.

Robert B. Toy, representing the Atlanta branch of the Estey organ company, returned yesterday from Texas, where he has been in the interest of this company. Among other cities visited by Mr. Toy was Dallas There he met Professor Capwell, formerly of Atlanta. Mr. Toy says the professor is engaged in a music house in that city, and that he is working hard to redeem himself.

Our Boys.

Friday night at the hospitable mansion of Professor Peck, the retiring officers of "Our Boys" social club, gave a handsome entertainment in honor of the new officers. There was a bevy of the beauties of Atlanta and a fine assembly of its young men. The evening passed fast to the delights it brought and the last hour was the only one with a tinge of regret [illegible] cause it was the last.

ALL AROUND US.

WHAT THE PEOPLE ARE DOING.

A Cherokee County Lady Commits Suicide, Induced by Her Husband's Craziness—A Car on Fire—A Railroad Convention—Americus and the Alligator.

By Mail and Wire to The Constitution.

CANTON, June 10.—The citizens of our usually quiet town were this evening about 6 o'clock thrown into great excitement by the sad news reaching here that Mrs James D. Dobbs, who resides one mile south of this place on the Marietta road, had purposely cut her throat. Summoning an escort your correspondent at once hurried to the scene of this awful sad occurrence, where I found the report to be too truly substantiated by the plain facts. Lying upon the bed was Mrs. Dobbs, and Dr. J. M. Turk was bending over her washing away the blood which had clodded in her throat. From what I could learn she had made two attempts to cut her throat—the gashes show this—with one of James Barlow & Son's old English razors. One gash was about three inches long, the other extended from ear to ear and severed two leading arteries, striking into the windpipe. The razor being sharp cut smoothly, which caused the sides to have a tendency to come together, and this kept back considerable blood, and yet the wounds bled very profusely. In the cluster of bushes just back of the house where she did the awful work was a quantity of blood. When I left she was lying in a quiet condition and from what Dr. Turk said life is very uncertain; she is very badly cut. She is a lady of about forty years of age and the mother of some six or more young children. Her husband, our former treasurer, has been out of his proper mind since the last election, and at times very wild and hard to control; this condition of his has crazed Mrs. Dobbs which this evening terminated as above stated. Mr. Dobbs was this evening about the house, but appeared to be unconcerned, unconscious of what was going on; he did not appear to be the least bit concerned, but sat staring every one in the face. This indeed is one of the saddest occurrences that has ever taken place in Cherokee county, and there is not a soul in this county that has heard of this lamentable affair, but that deeply sympathizes with their awful condition.——Hearing was had to-day before Judge James R. Brown by Atherton & Stephens of the Talking Rock cotton factory, upon an injunction filed by Mr. J. E. Stephens, son of Dr. Stephens, deceased, the original partner, praying that a receiver be appointed to close up the business of the factory. Mr. T. Atherton, as surviving partner, claimed that he had the right to do this. The disputed point arose there and each procured counsel and sought a hearing before Judge Brown. R J. McCamy, of Dalton, was Mr. T. Atherton's lawyer, while Mr. J. E. Stephens was represented by Messrs. T. F. Grier, of Ellijay, and Paul Lester, of Cumming. Pending the decision of Judge Brown, who had asked for a few hours in which to consider the question and the law, a settlement was agreed upon by the parties by which Mr. J. E. Stephens bought the half interest of Mr. T. Atherton for $10,000. Thus this suit was brought to an amicable settlement.——Several cars of iron for our railroad have arrived, and will be laid upon the road bed in a short while. One hundred and fifty tons of this iron is to be delivered in Marietta by the 13th instant.——Mr. J. B. Glover, treasurer of the Marietta and North Georgia railroad company, came out to-day for his first trip with his pay-train, leaving money along the line. He scattered along the road in our county not less than about $3,000.

MACON, June 11.—A sad case of poisoning occurred here Tuesday evening. Two little sons of Mr. W. B. Jobson ate a quantity of wild cherries about six o'clock that evening, and before nine o'clock Willie, the elder of the two, was a corpse The other child managed to relieve his stomach with an emetic and was spared. Though not generally known, the seeds of the wild cherry contain a poison like prussic acid, and as the children ate the seeds the poison acted immediately.——Mr. Carver, recently book keeper of the Telegraph and Messenger, died yesterday, of typhoid fever.——The water works are now an assured success, and the glorious gurgle is fast becoming an institution. Yesterday a stream from one of the plugs was thrown over the Lanier house. It will be extensively patronized.——Macon is letting herself out in the matter of improvement. Real estate jumped out several points within the past few weeks. One corner on Mulberry street, a relic of the brand of the federals, could have been bought a few weeks ago for $5,000, is now held at double that amount with an offer of $8,000. Several new projects are on foot and I learn private subscriptions are being taken for a new factory and for a new opera house.——Charlie Herbst, of the library, has been presented with a casket of Blue Lick water direct from Kentucky.

AMERICUS, June 10—Yesterday afternoon Messrs. James Wilkins and J. P. Chapman killed a large alligator on Muckalee creek, about two and a half miles from the city. They brought their game to town, where he attracted a great deal of attention, being viewed by hundreds of people during the afternoon He was the largest alligator that has been seen in Sumter county for many years, being ten feet and ten inches long and weighing 295 pounds. From his large proportions, and from the fact that his teeth were worn nearly completely off to the gums, it is conjectured that he was one of the oldest inhabitants of the county. For many years past a large alligator has been occasionally seen by the fishermen and others in the immediate vicinity where the one was killed. The monster was dissected this morning, and soon the report was circulated over the city that an old pocket knife, a dilapidated watch, an ancient silver coin, a portion of a man's shoe and a couple of rocks had been found in the creature's stomach. This report caused some little sensation and a good deal of comment. The articles were undoubtedly found in the creature's stomach, but whether he devoured them before his untimely taking off or got hungry during last night and scooped them in the absence of more palatable diet is an open question.

MARIETTA, June 11—Last night being the 25th anniversary, or silver wedding of Rev. D. L. Buttolph and wife, the members of his church celebrated it by an elegant entertainment at his residence. A pleasant feature was the reading of a poem written by Judge Bleckley for the occasion, by James D. Waddell, and a presentation of a purse to defray the expenses of a respite from his labors, granted by his congregation. Mr. Buttolph, deeply affected by the sudden and pleasant surprise, answered in a beautiful and appropriate strain. Many friends other than his congregation were present, and all enjoyed the occasion to the greatest degree.——The Marietta and North Georgia railroad is now receiving their iron for the extension of the road beyond Canton, and the track laying will commence Monday and be pushed to completion.——Marietta sends a greeting to the gate city in behalf of her railroad boom, and hopes to be benefited by the new combinations.——Mrs. G R. Gilbert, an old and esteemed citizen of our city, died yesterday.

HAWKINSVILLE, June 10.—On the 9th instant, soon after the 5 o'clock train left Hawkinsville for Cochran, and when about two miles from this place, a box car loaded with hay caught on fire, as is supposed from a spark from the engine, and both hay and car were entirely consumed. The car was next to the engine, and as soon as the fire was discovered Conductor Eugene Allen stopped the train, cut loose the burning car and drawing it to a safe distance, and seeing no chance to save it, transferred the passengers, mail and baggage to the engine and proceeded to Cochran, making connection with the up main line train. The car was marked E. & T. H.—belonged to the Evansville and Terre Haute railroad—and contained about twenty thousand pounds of hay, shipped by one of our provision brokers to a gentleman at Eastman. The loss to our railroad is about $1,000—car and hay.

EASTMAN, June 10.—A public meeting was held here to-day with William Pitt Eastman as chairman, and John F. DeLacy secretary, at which the chairman, M. L. Burch and James Bishop, Jr., were elected delegates from this county to the railroad convention at Americus next Tuesday, the 14th.

Makes His Weekly Visit to Our Readers.

Written for The Constitution.

Well, it was a splendid frolic—mighty nigh equal to a small circus. The reaper moved along through the golden grain like a thing of life, and the ripe straw bowed its head and fell before the blade most beautifully, as if conscious that its race was run, and it must get ready for the oven. Harvest time is full of poetry. I remember that the first rhymes I ever learned began, "In Adam's fall we sinned all," and a part of it was, "Death cuts down all, both great and small," and there was a picture of a horrid old skeleton with a scythe blade, and he was just slaying the grain, like death slays the human family. Then in the old fashioned books there was pictures of men half bent cutting down wheat with a little short crooked sickle about a foot and a half long. Next came the modern cradle with a long sweeping blade and five long fingers, and that was considered the perfection of implements. Farmers worked mighty hard in the good old times, but they didn't mind it, and were as happy then as now. "Oft did the harvest to their sickle yield," and they made a frolic of it and had a good time, and the good wife and daughters refreshed 'em with pies and cakes and beer, and at night they gathered round the festive board and told big yarns, and took comfort in their day's lab[illegible] and thumping like a pounding mill. Farmers don't do that way now. People would perish to death a waiting on em for now there are so many millions doing nothing or trading and speculating and loafing around that it takes all sorts of machinery to keep up with their vittels and clothes. People have got to eat whether they produce anything or not, and if they can't get it one way they will another. The books say that one healthy strong man can from his own labor support eight persons and that's just what they are doing About one man in eight or maybe ten is at work—that is, doing something to maintain his race—making something useful or growing something. The balance are suckers. They suck the juice out of industry and live off of other people's labor. Grady said not long ago that there was going to be another big corner in bread stuffs this summer but the farmers wouldn't get the benefit. After the farmer sells then the rise comes and the speculator makes the money. He is a non-producer, a blood sucker, a vampire, a wrecker, a buzzard, a public cuss—I despise em.

The reaper went ratling along reeling to its own music and the binders followed in its train and so did the children and little darkies and the women folks leaned upon the fence and looked just like women and children do when the circus comes or the volunteers are marching along with a brass band in front of em. It took some time for the novelty to wear off and the fun to play out, but even to the last it was a good honest show and didn't cost anything to see it all the day long We had an ovation of our own after the wheat was all cut and shocked for they say you never know whether you are going to have any wheat or not until it is safely harvested. I reckon it was well enough to ovate General Gordon and his unborn railroad, for it did no harm and give right smart satisfaction to all concerned, but it seems to me that the best time to ovate a man is after he has finished his job, though I suppose they can then ovate him again if they want to. "Let not him boast that putteth the armour on." No I think it is the safest plan to wait tell the armour is taken off, dont you? For you see something might happen or the road not be built or the general might be sold out by his company or the Louisville and Nashville might play a checkmate or Mr. Wadley do something or the world might come to an end prematurely, for folks do say that about the 20th of this month the moon and five planets conjunct and no telling what kind of a corner such a syndicate might get up. Who knows but what the devil has a blackboard on the wall right now with the price of sinners for July and August. Sinners of all grades—first class, midditng, ordinary and dogtail. Spot sinners and sinners for future delivery. Methinks I see a stock broker setting up there reporting sales and discounting death on the pale horse for selling short. Fort says there is jus' obleged to be another world for folks to get even with one another and balance accounts, whether they get even with justice or not. Bob Ingersoll may say what he pleases to make bad men calm and serene, but it won't do. His doctrine of universal salvation and general glory would overturn the government and make discord reign, for I know lots of men who wouldent be allowed to live two weeks if folks dident believe the devil would get his paws on 'em in the long run. There's a power of folks allowed to live because they are not fitten to die. Good men lean to mercy and believe in a future punishment, and are willing to wait for a new deal, and I know some preachers who are about as willing for some folks to get a little scorching over the brimstone pit as I am—just a little, if not more.

I'm mighty glad Jeff Davis has waked up them incendiaries who burnt our country. Columbia is one place and the Sherman belt is another, and its long and wide and ten thousand witnesses still live to testify and he can't dodge 'em nor honeyfuggle 'em, and I want him to go down to his grave with a halo of shame around him; I do—that's a fact. Reckon he would deny burning Cassville, close by where I live—burning her churches and colleges, and every single dwelling and outhouse. Reckon he would deny tearing our cemetery all to pieces at Rome where my children were buried, and taking the tombstones and monuments for his fortification when there was thousands of rock close by. Well, he did leave one just one, for it was a monument to an officer of the United States navy who died before the war. He made his soldiers protect that. Talk about Sherman to me. He's got no more pity, nor mercy, nor sentiment, than a Comanche Indian. Its a little thing to speak of, but it makes me mad every time I think about them lying rascals saying they caught Mr. Davis in petticoats, and Sherman has known it was a lie for fifteen years and never denied it, and the whole yankee nation believe it to this day—dogon their slanderous pictures. I'm for Mr. Davis, I am, and the longer he lives the brigher he shines in the galaxy of great and good men. So mote it be.

Tell Judge Henderson I'm going to send him some wheat as is wheat. I sowed ten acres of Kentucky amber, a beautiful grain, and right broad-side ten acres of Dallas wheat, rust proof, that I got from my old friend, Nat Crawford, of Lincoln. The Kentucky took the rust pretty bad on one corner next to the Dallas, but it never crossed the line. The Dallas maintains its reputation this year with me and next season I shall plant nothing else. Tell him we are breaking colts now and they just tumble my boys right and left. Its splendid fun, and is a part of the farming business. Couldn't he tell us how to break a high strung colt without breaking anybody's neck. Yours,

BILL ARP.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

Responses From all Parts of the State

A few days ago THE CONSTITUTION gave an account of a meeting of prominent gentlemen held in Atlanta to consider the propriety of issuing a call for a convention to consult what means would best promote the cause of temperance in Georgia. The unanimous opinion of the meeting was that such a convention should be called. To make the call more effective letters were written to prominent men all over the state, asking their indorsement of it.

Only a few days have elapsed since the movement began, but the result has been most gratifying to the gentlemen who have taken the lead in this matter. Letters are coming in daily from all parts of the state, and their general tone is one of confidence that great things can be done by a concert of action all over the state.

Counties are already calling meetings to elect delegates, so certain is the convention considered. By next Wednesday the call will be issued and will go out with the indorsement of over 200 men known in every part of the state. A large attendance is guaranteed, and there will be no lack of enthusiasm.

The general object of the convention will be to unify the temperance work of the state, to make it more co-operative than it has ever been.

The legislature will be petitioned on the subject of restricting, if not prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors.

A prominent senator recently said that whatever views a legislator entertained on this question the people certainly have the right to decide. A very strong effort will be made to submit the prohibition question to the people.

The present movement aims at this end. There are men of influence in both houses of the legislature ready to advocate the submission of this question to the people, and if there is sure to come a warm contest. A general local option law will be pressed early in the session.

The convention will prepare its plans for using strong influences on the law makers. The friends of temperance have never been so thoroughly aroused in Georgia as they are to-day. Most of them are confident of succeeding in the present movement

The following are a few expressions taken from replies sent by prominent men in various parts of the state:

Dr. B. L. Ross, Fort Valley—Most heartily do I indorse the suggestion of a convention in the interests of temperance, which is the interests of humanity, morality and religion.

W. H. Branch, Greensboro—I most heartily approve the call and will take steps to have this county represented.

Dr. W. C. Smith, Grantville—Put me down one scholar.

U B. Wilkinson, Newnan—I heartily approve the call, and will have a delegation there.

Rev. Atticus G. Haygood, Oxford—Add my name to the call.

C. D. McCutcheon, Dalton—I think the call very desirable. It would tend to secure unanimity and give greater force to the movement.

Rev. E. W. Warren, Macon—I am in favor of any movement that will "crush the monster," intemperance, and save our people from the ruins of the liquor traffic.

J. A. Shivers, Warrenton—I fully and freely indorse the call and its purposes.

C. W. Hancock, Americus—I hearty approve the call.

Rev. E. Z. F. Golden, Thomasville.—Put me down in favor of it.

Dr. Eugene Foster, Augusta—I most gladly sign the call.

Rev. W. A. Candler, Dahlonega—I approve the call with all my heart.

Rev. W. L. Kilpstrick, Hepzibah—I most heartily indorse the call.

Hon. W. L. Peek, Conyers—I will sign the call. May God speed the temperance cause.

G. W. Adams, Forsyth—I approve the call, and gladly authorize my name to be signed to it.

Dr. J. L. Hamilton, Stone Mountain—I am in full sympathy with the object of the contemplated convention, and trust success may come to it

E. M. Word, Decatur—I approve the call.

H. G. Everitt, Savannah—Will try and have a full delegation from this county.

Rev G. A. Nunnally, Rome—Let the tide roll on, and God help the right.

Rev. C. D. Campbell, Athens—Wise legislation upon this important matter is loudly called for and greatly demanded. I approve the call Colonel H. P. Farrow, Atlanta—I'll sign the call. Push forward the good cause.

Rev. W. J. White, Augusta—I cordially indorse any movement that tends to suppress intemperance and the liquor tariff.

Any communication relative to the coming convention may be sent to Mr. W. G. Whidby, secretary, Atlanta.

THE TWO SNAGS

THAT LIE JUST AHEAD OF US

Opinions on the Two Big Political Campaigns of the Year—Senator Vest's Estimate of the Contest in Virginia—The Ohio Republicans a Little Shaky.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Senator Vest, in an interview, speaking of the result of the Virginia campaign, says: "The readjusters can be defeated, and the democrats have the means to do it effectually; but it will not be by Chinese yelling and beating of drums and tomtoms. It will require close, hard work, and plenty of it. The Mahone party have nominated for governor their best man. Cameron is a fine speaker, an able writer, and a gentleman of character and courage. He is a foeman worthy of any man's steel, and it's no use to throw mud at any such candidate. He must be met with other weapons. He declared himself a democrat, and in principle he may be; but his company and practices are very remarkable. All the world knows and he knows, that the object of the Mahone movement is to destroy the democratic party. As Mahone declared in the senate, 'I want none of it.' After Cameron, the readjuster ticket is not strong. It is a piebald, mulatto arrangement, and such combinations do not last very long. They are not popular with the American public nor the south. The Bell-Everett ticket of 1856, the Greeley movement of 1872, and the coalition of greenbackers and democrats in Maine, furnish evidence of what I state. Such political arrangements may do for a little while, but they don't last over one or two campaigns. I repeat, that the democrats, if they act wisely, can beat Mahone completely."

As to the candidates for governor on the democratic side, he says: "There is no scarcity of democrats who would carry the flag gallantly. Goode, Kemper, Fitzhugh Lee and Harris are all men of unquestioned ability and character. I know them all. But there is one man in Virginia who has every requisite of a good leader, and who would be elected as certainly as I am a living man. Sometimes my convictions are presentiments; and I tell you now that if William H. Payne is nominated by the Virginia democrats for governor, and Fitzhugh Lee for lieutenant governor, there is no question about our victory. You smile at my enthusiasm, and perhaps I speak warmly; but I know Payne, and of what he is capable. As an orator, he has no equal in Virginia, the land of orators; whilst his cool head unquestionable courage, and stainless character make him the idol of his state. He is worthy to lead Virginians in a fight like this."

Senator Vest says the democrats have made a mistake in not calling their convention at an earlier date than August. "For nearly twenty years," he says, "the democratic party has been intrenched, and waiting for attack. In 1876 we won the battle, and then our leaders, for fear of an attack after the main engagement, surrendered the presidency. Two years ago we marched into the extra session with drums beating and banners waving, but the radicals threw out a strong skirmish line, and our conservative generals immediately retired from the field. At this last session the conservative policy was sent to the rear; and now look at the result. I tell you it won't do. It will give any party the dry-rot to wait for an advance of the enemy. The Virginia democrats ought to hold a convention early in July, nominate Payne and Fitzhugh Lee, and it would be a grand change from that time until complete victory on the day of election."

The republican leaders here are constrained to believe that the ticket nominated by the Ohio republicans is a strong one. As to the platform, there is a disposition in certain quarters to criticise it because it did not give the president a specific indorsement in the matter of the New York trouble. Some of those to whom Sherman has unbosomed his private grievances say it must have been a painful spectacle to have seen him struggle in that portion of his speech which paid tribute to the president, and more especially to Governor Foster.

There is considerable interest felt as to whom the democrats will nominate for governor. There is among some democrats the feeling that it would not be a bad idea to nominate Thurman, and insist upon his making the canvass. If he should do so, and be elected, he would have everything to gain, whereas, if defeated, he would lose nothing. The Star prints a paragraph to the effect that it has private advices that Theodore Cook, of Cincinnati, will be a commanding candidate. Of one thing there is apparent evidence, and that is the republicans are not sure of a victory if the democrats put up a good ticket. There are a good many quarrels among the faithful, which do not appear to the laymen on the surface.

John G. Thompson, who is here, said a day or so ago that everything seemed to be at sea. He had no idea who the democrats would nominate, but he was exuberantly hopeful of a democratic victory. John having lost his faithful cashier, Winship, will not have as much time as heretofore to attend to politics, but will have to look after his affairs in connection with the public office he holds.

It is conceded if Hugh J. Jewett could be induced to accept a nomination he could be elected. There is but little talk here of Follett or of the old war-horse, General Durbin Ward.

IS HE CRAZY?

A Colored Man Who Claims That He Can Walk Fifteen Miles An Hour.

Yesterday a CONSTITUTION reporter chanced upon a colored citizen at the corner of Decatur and Ivy streets who is now the center of interest among the gamin. The individual is an honest looking darkey of verdant appearance, who hails from the land of flowers. His get up is something unusual. His shoes are remarkably large for a man of his size and the broad brim of his white wool hat is held in position by a white oak hoop to which it is tacked with thread in several places. A leather strap passes over his shoulder to which dangles six clean white canvas sacks in which he keeps his traveling outfit which is guarded with the greatest care. He carries a heavy stick with a peculiar ferrule. He attracted the greatest amount of attention, and was surrounded by a crowd all day yesterday. To the reporter he gave his name Richard Davidson, and stated that he had come to Atlanta from Jacksonville, Florida, where he resides He showed the scribe a paper signed by C. C. Fearland, which announced him as "Lightning Express," and stated that his walking feats had astonished the natives in Florida. The negro claims that he walked from Jacksonville to Atlanta in exactly five days and has frequently traveled by foot from place to place faster than railway trains or steamboats could make the time. He says that on one occasion he walked from Baldwin to Cedar Keys, a distance of 105 miles, in eight hours and a half, arriving in Cedar Keys an hour and a half ahead of a train which had gotten ten miles the start of him. He walks everywhere that his fancy [illegible] him, and is confident of his [illegible] Atlanta to Augusta in one nigh[illegible] well known all over southern Ge[illegible] and Florida, and insists that a telegram to any of the prominent citizens of several Florida towns would meet with an answer indorsing what he says of himself. He is well informed as to places, distances, etc. He says he came here merely to see the city, and will walk back to Jacksonville in a few days. He is either the boss walker, the boss prevaricator, or a loose lunatic, but which of the three it is is a difficult matter to determine.

Proceedings and Exercises Yesterday.

Yesterday the state association of the Young Men's Christian association continued and completed its business. The association was called to order at 9 o'clock by the president.

From 9 to 9:15 there were devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Mr. Bingham, of Edgewood.

9:15 to 10—How to develop and sustain the young men's prayer meeting, for young men exclusively. Discussion opened by Walter S. Lewis, general secretary of Atlanta. He advised short interesting talks and prayers always. To develop, get a few young men and interest them in it, and then personally invite and bring others, each man doing all he can.

10 to 10:30—Financial problem was then discussed, and the sustaining membership was warmly recommended as the most successful. To be discussed by Mr. Clay and Dr. Houston, of Savannah.

10:30 to 11—Ought a general secretary to be employed by each association? Discussed by Mr. Gilbert, of Savannah. This officer should be had in every large city to oversee and organize all the work in its various branches and to organize members into committees to perform it. In smaller places men can be secured who can do it from the members—in large places experienced men alone are successful.

11 to 11:30—"Work among the boys"—Discussed by G. T. Green, superintendent of the children's home. The need to get the boys under right influence at an early age was made [illegible] If done then it will save them for all [illegible] work is very successfully done in [illegible] tions north.

Coroner Hilburn was notified and a jury of inquest organized. The evidence showed that Sullivan's health was in an enfeebled condition, and that he had started from home during the night to procure some medicine. It is supposed that he died from the effects of a fall, and a verdict in accordance with that idea was made.

Judge Bleckley's Lecture.

The lecture of Judge Bleckley for the benefit of the Young Men's library next Tuesday evening promises to be one of the rarest literary treats ever known in Atlanta. Judge Bleckley has such a fund of rich humor and such a wealth of fine thought that his offerings next Tuesday evening will be beautiful. Secure tickets at once, and be sure to attend.

Baccalaureate Sermon.

The anniversary exercises of the Atlanta university will be begun to-day with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. C. W. Francis at 11:15 a.m. The examinations will be begun to-morrow and continue three days, commencing each day at 8:45 a.m.

Trinity Choir.

Trinity choir, recently organized, held its first regular monthly meeting last Friday evening at the residence of Mr. E. P. Chamberlin. The officers are: Mr. W. R. Hammond, president; Mr. W. D. Greene, vice-president, Miss Sarah D. Cady, secretary, Miss M. F. LaHatt, treasurer, Mr. J. C. Ford, librarian. The object of this organization is to furnish a high order of music for Trinity M. E. church, of this city, combining solo singers with an efficient, well-drilled chorus, and such instruments as may be required with the organ of the church, the largest in the city, presided over by Mr. John O'Donnelly.

Mr. C. M. Cady, the manager of the Estey organ company, has been engaged as musical director. Although known principally as a business man Mr. Cady has all his life been connected with music and has had large experience as a choir and convention leader, musical editor and oratorio conductor. He, years ago, edited the New York Musical Review; then going to Chicago, organized and conducted there the Musical Union, which gave the first oratorio performances ever given in that city. Just before coming to Atlanta he was for some time the marshal of the choral choir of St. Paul church, Brooklyn, pronounced by the critics of the secular press the finest choir in that city. Trinity choir embraces both active and associate members, the former being performing members who are relieved from all expenses. Application for either active or associate membership may be made to any of the officers of the choir. The opening anthem at this morning's services commencing at 10:45 is to be "Crown Him Everlasting King," by Warren, and in the evening at 8:15, "How Lovely is Zion," with Miss Cady in the obligato solo.

A Tribute to the Memory of Mrs. Emma L. Smith.

"I Would Not Live Alway!" Thus the heart sings as its tenderest chords are touched by the death angel and vibrate to sorrows voice. To the stricken soul, earth has no music, sympathy no balm, tears no pity. Beyond the bright stars we linger in thought and hold sweet converse with the loved ones gone before. Our sweetest flowers bloom in fadeless beauty in the sweet heaven of the good, and earth keeps not her jewels, but gives them up to God, to win our hearts to Him. We look beyond the river to-day, because the Good Shepherd has gathered to Himself our dearest friends, or happiest associates. Oh! who would [illegible] meet them, and greet them, and love them forever on the other sh[illegible] Death lays his icy fingers on our idols, and our poor hearts bleed and our hot tears would flow 'till the heart breaks and the spirit dies, but through the storm's dark shadow, we see the golden sunlight of hope and heaven, and amid the wails of unutterable grief we hear the song of angels, "Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal."

If God be in the storm its rage cannot harm, and if He hath filled our cup, there is in it, however bitter, the best medicine for the soul. "Whom the Lord loveth, he chasteneth." In these reflections, who cannot find consolation even in the intensest grief for the loss of our friends! A few days since and Mrs. Emma Smith was with us. In our very hearts she lived, for none knew her but to love her. Pure in thought, tender in her love, gentle as the voice of peace, a little lower than an angel, she lived and moved among us, the embodiment of all the social excellences and Christian virtues. Was a poor child of sorrow at the gate? In her he found a friend. "Was any sick?" It was her willing hand and tender heart which smoothed down the lonely pillow. Was any sad? She wept with those that wept. But she is not, because God took her. In the sweet month of May she began her new life amid the flowers of heaven. By her life, by her Christian example, by her death she says to husband, children and friends: "Come up higher."

To the writer of this poor tribute she was more than a friend. Long years of intimacy had bound us together by a thousand tender sympathies and associations. Were there but one flower on the earth, I would pluck it and place it on her new made grave.

The attempt to connect the plot of two Irish laborers to blow up the town hall of Liverpool with the Fenian brotherhood of this country, will probably break down. The two men seem to have acted on their own responsibility. The scare in England relative to efforts by Irishmen from the United States is also very wild and improbable. The people of England are just now disposed to regard every returning Irishman as a Guy Fawkes, but they will recover their senses soon, no doubt.

The fast-mail contract expires on the 30th of this month. Congress voted a handsome sum for this service during the next fiscal year, and we hope Mr. Thompson, who has charge of the railway mail service, will not only see that the present mail facilities in the south are continued, but that he will expedite the fast mail that goes southward to Atlanta. It should arrive in Atlanta as soon as 9 o'clock. There is really no good reason why it should not. The roads over which it is run are now in good condition, and the running time of an expedited train would not be as fast ... express trains are driven on every northern trunk line.

The supreme court of New Hampshire has decided that the present New Hampshire legislature should select Senator Rollins's successor, although his term does not expire until March 4, 1883. The confusion arose from a blunder in the constitutional amendment. This amendment changed the state elections from annually in March to biennially in November of the even numbered years, but it did not change the date of the political year from ... June. A legislature ... will be chosen in November, 1882, but it will not meet until June, 1883. Under the federal law this legislature should elect Rollins's successor, but that would leave New Hampshire without a senator from March to June. On the ground that the state should at all times have two senators the highest court of the state holds that the present legislature should make the selection, although it is not the legislature "last chosen" before ...he senatorial term. ...ho thus brought the ...te in conflict with the federal law deserve leather medals.

Mr. ... is conducting the post-office department on business principles, and he is deservedly winning the good opinion of the country. We hope he will keep on as he has begun; and when he looks into Georgia matters, we hope he will see that a small extra allowance—say $600 a year—to the Atlanta post-office would be money well expended. This small sum would enable Governor Conley to send a man up the Air-Line each morning to meet the fast mail; and ...n when the fast mail arrived at the car-shed the Atlanta mail would be assorted ready for delivery to the carriers. This would insure the delivery of this important mail within a half an hour after its arrival, and would enable the small force in the office to quickly distribute the remainder of the mail. At present the carriers often have to wait until all the mails that arrive about mid-day are assorted, and so do not begin the work of delivery until about two hours after the arrival of the fast mail. If the postmaster-general will look into this matter, we are sure that he will give At... the needed relief.

Mr. Norcross's Reminiscences.

We print elsewhere the substance of an interview with Mr. Jonathan Norcross, which embodies in brief shape the railroad history of Atlanta. It could be elaborately enlarged, but in the comparatively little space to which the report of the interview is confined, the readers of THE CONSTITUTION have the pith of the history of Atlanta as a railroad and business center. To what is there crisply set forth it is only necessary to add that Mr. Norcross, although he has grown gray in the business, and has achieved the competency which an active old age permits him to enjoy, is still ready to fight for Atlanta. He is warm on the subject of politics, but still warmer when the future of the great city he has done so much to build is brought up for discussion. His reminiscences are of absorbing interest to the present generation of Atlanta people.

The Lease of the Georgia Road.

The recent lease of the Georgia railroad is still fresh in the minds of our people. With respect to how it was done and what will be the result very few men have any definite knowledge. One thing is certain: it was well planned and most successfully carried out. No one can doubt that President Phinizy and his friends, in making this lease, made a splendid move for the stockholders. It makes no difference what happens in the future, the company is safe and a dividend is secured for double the volume of ... stock; and in two years from this date parties who look over the present contract will see that it was wisely made. It is rather singular to find on investigation, that very few of the original stock... of this road have parted with ... hold on to it because ... found it good paying ... present arrangement ...y that better divi... than the most san... stock ever an... ...isville

Mr. C. H. Phinizy, president of the road, and Mr. John H. James, with a few others, stockholders and directors of the road. The confidence that has been shown by the stockholders in the lease is a decided compliment to these gentlemen. The road was leased by Mr. W. M. Wadley and his associates. Precisely who their associates are, we do not know. Subsequent to the lease, Mr. Wadley and his associates let the Louisville and Nashville company have a half interest in the lease. The road is now managed by a board of commissioners, as follows: W. W. Wadley, W. G. Raoul, T. B. Gresham, J. H. Alexander, C. H. Phinizy and W. E. Jackson. The first three represent Mr. Wadley and his associates, and the last three represent the Louisville and Nashville on the board. Several changes will be made at both ends of the line, and the road will be now on as economical a basis as possible.

The Constitution of the Future.

THE CONSTITUTION appreciates the prosperity of the times—of Georgia, and particularly of Atlanta. It appreciates, too, and is deeply grateful for, the business which it receives, and which it may reasonably look forward to. It proposes to keep pace with the city, state and its own income. To this end the managers of THE CONSTITUTION have the pleasure of announcing that the paper will soon be printed from new type in quarto form, the pages to be neatly cut and securely pasted. The new eight-page paper will be larger than the Springfield Republican and not much smaller than the Cincinnati Gazette—thus giving the reader a handsome additional amount of matter in the most convenient form. This will require new type, new machinery, and a new outfit generally, but all these things will be in place before the fall season, before the exposition boom is fully upon us. This change will be made, first, to give Atlanta a paper that will meet every reasonable expectation, and, secondly, to carry out an established policy of the managers, namely, to give back to the patrons of the paper all that they pay in after deducting a legitimate profit on the investment of the stockholders. In other words, the paper's income is the measure of the paper's merit and comprehensiveness. We hope to be able to make THE CONSTITUTION first-class in every particular. We claim to know what a first-class paper should contain, and the plan of THE CONSTITUTION embraces many changes in the matter of news-gathering as well as in the form and size of the sheet. We believe the income of the paper will in the near future, justify the adoption of all of them; and we this morning pledge THE CONSTITUTION to the making of them just as fast as the books of the business manager will warrant. The changes announced this morning are part of this plan that looks to a paper that Atlanta and the south generally will not be ashamed of, no matter when or where ...re a comparison is made. But let it not ...t be thought that we are acting solely ... from patriotic motives. We believe ...at the better the paper the better the business it will receive. Men generally desire a full equivalent for their money; and THE CONSTITUTION invites just such a test. It proposes to achieve success by deserving it; and if in doing so it is able to serve to greater advantage its city, state and section, certainly no one will begrudge its managers the happiness that such a result is sure to bring.

A Word to Young Men.

A large majority of the young men now growing up in our state are looking forward to some profession. Take out those who expect to follow a profession and those who want places on railroads or in business houses, and we have quite a small number left to make mechanics and farmers. Everyone will admit that to the latter class we must look for all the prosperity and permanent development in our state. The Georgia-raised skilled mechanic is very scarce, and the number is not increasing, although the demand is fourfold greater than before the war. The wide awake scientific Georgia farmer in the young generation is getting scarce, although there was never a more inviting field. We have plenty of young lawyers and physicians who would make more reputation and a better living if they would begin now and learn to be skillful mechanics or good farmers. Let the reader consider for a moment how few of the young men of the present day are preparing themselves for the useful avocations in life, and the force of our thoughts on this subject will be apparent. It takes just as much brains to equip a good farm or a good mechanic as to equip a good preacher or good lawyer. The physical exertion is required of the hands instead of the tongue, and that is where the trouble comes in. Too many young men disregard the divine injunction to live by the sweat of their brow, and endeavor instead, to make a living by the sweat of their jaw. A reasonable number of our young men can take this course and not injure the state, but when eight out of ten make up their minds to follow the professions, the result is exceedingly injurious to the community.

No man of sense will question the fact that to-day the most inviting field for our young men is in becoming skilled mechanics and good scientific farmers. Georgia is at the threshold of a period of wonderful material development, and in ten years will be one of the greatest manufacturing states in the union. The field for farmers is just as inviting. Are we to bring men into our state to do all this work, or shall our young men learn how to do it themselves? The sooner they do the better it will be for them and the state.

A young man raised in Atlanta, Mr. J. D. Cunningham, Jr., has established himself near Griffin, at Orchard Hill, on an extensive peach farm. He is shipping this early in the season large quantities of this delicious fruit to New York. He is making a success of it, and is doing more practical good to develop this state than half of our statesmen. Ten thousand young men in the state could in a short time be on as good footing as Mr. Cunningham in the various branches of agriculture, having employment all the time, both pleasant and remunerative.

Let us hope that our young men will consider this question. If one half the idlers were to look at this question properly, we would not need to cry aloud for immigration to develop our resources.

WHEN the Chicago editors get into a per... controversy with each other, the ... editorial columns

THE controversy between Editor Joe Medill and Editor Wilbur Storey, of Chicago, goes on without intermission. This savage dispute, if we remember correctly, had its origin in a dispute over the authenticity of some of the language employed in the revised edition of the New Testament.

MR CONKLING should write a card.

THE latest shape of a coroner's verdict in Texas is to the effect that the Hon. John Bloodgood, of Wahoo, drew his pistol and compelled the Hon. Jeremiah Folinsbee, to commit suicide.

IT is understood that Editor Medill is fattening Will Kernan, the long-haired Ohio secessionist, for the campaign of 1884.

THE able democrats in the Albany legislature ought to insist on putting Jacobs in the senate anyhow. He is ineligible—but, really, when democrats want to blunder, what difference does ineligibility make? Isn't it rather an aid?

KELLY is very quiet. It is suspected that he is hiding behind a saloon screen.

"THE platform of the republican party," says Mr. Sherman, "is what it has done." We have not room here to allude to the various planks of this long platform, but among other things, it would be unjust not to mention that the republican party aided the Freedman's bank to swindle the unfortunate colored people of the south out of their hard earnings.

FOSTER is not in his own confidence this year. He doesn't know whether he will be elected or not. Probably not.

Now that Mr. McCormick, late of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has set the example, hundreds of newspaper men will break into the theatrical profession. But why should Mr. McCormick desire to conduct a man across the continent? Wasn't it just as easy to get the position of theatrical steppa to some young and gushing actress?

THE republicans of Ohio are not, just at present, engaged in a temperance crusade.

THE Hon. Montgomery Blair has emerged from his silence to remark that, with the exception of Mr. Tilden, Mr. Conkling is the most popular man in New York. Is it possible that Mr. Blair has overlooked Tommy Platt?

WITH the present lights before us, it is difficult to say how few men of either republican faction have been bribed.

PLANTATION STORIES.

A Rainy Day With Uncle Remus.

HOW MR. FOX WAS A LITTLE TOO SMART.

Uncle Remus chuckled a moment over the escape of Brother Rabbit, and then turned his gaze upward toward the cobwebbed gloom that seemed to lie just beyond the rafters. He sat thus silent and serious a little while, but finally squared himself around in his chair and looked the little boy full in the face. The old man's countenance expressed a curious mixture of sorrow and bewilderment. Catching the child by the coat sleeve, Uncle Remus pulled him gently to attract his attention.

"Hit look like ter me," he said, presently, in the tone of one approaching an unpleasant subject, "dat no longer'n yistiddy I see wunner dem ar Favers chillun clim'in' dat ar big red-oak out yan', en den it seem like dat a little chap 'bout yo' size, he tuck'n start up fer ter see ef he can't play smarty like de Favers's yearlin's. I dunner w'at in de name er goodness you wanter be a copyin' a'ter dem ar Favers fer. Ef youer gwineter copy atter yuther folks, copy atter dem w'at's some 'count. Yo' pa, he got de idee dat some folks is good ez yuther folks, but Miss Sally, she know better. She know dat dey aint no Favers 'pon de top side er de yeth w'at kin hol' der han' wid de Abercrombies in p'int er breedin' en raisin'. Dat w'at Miss Sally know. I bin keepin' track er dem Favers sence way back yan' long fo' Miss Sally was born'd. Old Cajy Favers, he went ter de po'house, en ez ter dat ar Jim Favers, I boun' you he know de inside er all de jails in dish yer State er Jawjy. Dey allers did hate niggers kaze dey aint had none, en dey hates um down ter dis day.

"Endurin' er de war," Uncle Remus continued, "I year yo' Unk Jeems Abercrombie tell dat same Jim Favers dat if he lay de weight er his han' on wunner his niggers, he'd slap a load er buck-shot in 'im; en, bless yo' soul, honey, yo' Unk Jeems wuz de man ter do it. But dey er moust'us perlite unter me, dem Favers is," pursued the old man, allowing his indignation, which had risen to a white heat, to cool off, "en dey better be," he added, spitefully, "kaze I knows der pedigree fum de fus' ter de las', en w'en I gits my Affikin up, dey aint nobody, less'n it's Miss Sally 'crse'f, w'at kin keep me down.

"But dat aint needer yer ner dar," said Uncle Remus, renewing his attack upon the little boy. "W'at you wanter go copyin' atter dem Favers chillun fur? Youer settin' back dar, right dis minnit, bettin' longer yo'se'f dat I aint gwineter tell Miss Sally, en dar whar youer lettin yo' foot slip, kaze I'm gwineter let it pass dis time, but de ve'y nex' time wa't I ketches you in hollerin' distunse er dem Favers, right den en dar I'm gwineter take my foot in my han' en go en tell Miss Sally, en ef she don't natally skin you 'live, den she aint de same 'oman w'at she useter be.

"All dish yer copyin' atter deze yer Favers put me in min' er de time w'en Brer Fox gotter copyin' atter Brer Rabbit. I done told you 'bout de time w'en Brer Rabbit git de game fum Brer Fox by makin' like he dead?"

The little boy remembered it very distinctly, and said as much.

"Well, den, old Brer Fox, w'en he see how slick de trick wuk wid him, he say ter hisse'f dat he b'leeve he'll up'n' try de same kinder game on some yuther man, en he keep on watchin' fer his chance, twel bimeby, one day, he year Mr. Man comin' down de big road in his one-hoss waggin, kyar'n some chickens, en some eggs, en some butter to market. Brer Fox year 'im comin', he did, en w'at do he but go en lay down in de road front er de waggin? Mr. Man, he druv 'long, he did, cluckin' ter de hoss en hummin' ter hisse'f, en w'en dey git mos' up ter Brer Fox, de hoss, he shy, he did, en Mr. Man, he tuck'n holler Wo! en de hoss, he tuck'n wo'd. Den Mr. Man, he look down, en he see Brer Fox layin' out dar on de groun' des like he cole en stiff, en w'en Mr. Man see dis he holler out:

"'Heyo! Dar de chap, w'at bin nabbin' up my chickens, en somebody done gone en shoot off a gun at 'im, w'ich I wish she'd er bin two guns—dat I does!'

"Wid dat, Mr. Man, he druv on en lef' Brer Fox layin' dar. Den Brer Fox, he git up en run 'roun' thoo de woods en lay down front er Mr. Man ag'in, en Mr. Man come drivin' long, en he see Brer Fox, en he say, sezee:

"'Heyo! Yer de ve'y chap w'at bin 'stroyin' my pigs. Somebody done gone en kilt 'im, en I wish dey'd kilt 'im long time ago.'

"Den Mr. Man, he druv on, en de waggin w'eel come mighty nigh mashin' Brer Fox nose; yit, all de same, Brer Fox 'lipt up en run 'round 'head er Mr. Man, en lay down in de road, an we'en Mr. Man come 'long, dar he wuz all stretch out like he big 'nuff fer ter fill a two-bushel baskit, and he look like he dead 'nuff fer ter skin. Mr. Man druv up, he did, en stop He look down pun Brer Fox, en den he look all 'roun' fer ter see w'at de 'casion er all deze yer dead Fox is. Mr. Man look all 'round', he did, but he don't see nothin', en needer do he year nothin'. Den he set dar and study, en bimeby he 'low ter hisse'f, he did, dat he better 'zamin' w'at kinder cu'us zeeze done bin got inter Brer Fox fambly, en wid dat he lit down outer de waggin, en feel er Brer Fox year; Brer Fox year feel right wom. Den he feel er Brer Fox neck; Brer Fox neck right wom. Den he feel er B er Fox in de short ribs. Brer Fox all soun' in de short ribs. Den he feel er Brer Fox lim's: Brer Fox all soun' in de lim's. Den he tu'n Brer Fox over, en lo and beholes, Brer Fox right limber. W'en Mr. Man see dis, he say ter hisself, sezee:

"'Heyo, yer! how come dis? Dish yer chicken-nabber look like he dead, but dey aint no bones broked, en I aint see no blood, en needer does I feel no bruise; en mo'n dathe wom en he limber,' sezee. 'Sump'n' wrong yer, sho'! Dish yer pig grabber mout be dead en den ag'in he moutent,' sezee; 'but ter make sho' dat he is, I'll' des gin 'im a whack wid my w'ip-handle,' sezee; en wid dat, Mr. Man draw back en fotch Brer Fox a clip behime de years—pow!—en de lick come so hard en it come so quick dat Brer Fox thunk sho he's a goner; but 'fo' Mr. Man kin draw back fer to fetch 'm a n'er wipe, Brer Fox, he scramble to his feet, he did, en des make tracks 'way fum dar."

Uncle Remus paused and shook the cold ashes from his pipe, and then applied the moral:

"Dat w'at Brer Fox git fer playin' Mr. Smarty en copyin, atter yuther folks, en dat des de way de whole Smarty fambly gwineter ter come out."

The Constitution Team.

Sunday Gazette.

The applause with which Messrs. Howell and Grady are met when they are called on at banquets for speeches, proves that they are leading powers on THE CONSTITUTION, and, in fact, with Howell to point out the way, and Grady to blaze through, and Finch and Harris to open the road, there would seem little else to do. But at these same banquets at which the speaking is done by these gentlemen there is always seen a quiet, serious looking listener, usually biting the end of a cigar and enjoying what his partners have to say. This man is the real founder of THE CONSTITUTION and its conservative power now—W. A. Hemphill. For more than twelve years he has had charge of the business of THE CONSTITUTION—absolute control of its finances. Patient, sagacious and vigilant, he has supplied the fuel with which the steam is made, and he is always ready with the cash for any expense that is ordered. He is wise in editorial counsel and useful anywhere, but in the counting room he is supreme, and there his force has been in building up the paper. This tribute to his worth and ability is simple justice, as those who know him best will say.

Twelve Innocent, One Guilty.

Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Frederick A. Conkling, who accuses a member of the ways and means committee in the late house of having accepted bribes, is respectfully but firmly requested to bring on his beans. There are thirteen members of the ways and means committee. Of those who were members when the sugar question was decided one is now dead, two are senators one a senator-elect, and one is president of the United States. The other eight are, or have been, leading members of congress. It will be seen that Mr. Frederick Conkling has fired his scattering charge of birdshot against a rather distinguished company. He has no right to indulge in vague insinuations against thirteen public men, of whom twelve, by his own admission, are innocent. Let him be more specific. Name, name!

Nomadic.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It is really amusing, when you come to analyze it, that Grant should speak of Carl Schurz as a carpet-bagger. It is true that the great German statesman has shown a nomadic disposition in his day, but how about Grant? He was born in Ohio and lived there until manhood; then he took up his abode in Missouri, afterward in Illinois, and now he claims to be a citizen of New York. As a matter of fact Grant came near having no home at all.

Our Noble Tariff.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

It is argued in Boston that a world's fair held in that city will have the effect of opening up foreign markets for American manufacturers. No world's fair of any size will accomplish that, just so long as the present tariff curses the country. That tariff says very emphatically: "No foreign markets."

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Hereafter every Louisville man is required to clean his own gutters. Gentlemen in the habit of going to sleep in these cool and fragrant spots must not feel hurt if they be hoed up into the road-bed just ahead of the milk wagon.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Lane.

Caverns of apple boughs frescoed with bloom;
Folding you close in dainty perfume;

Half a score bobolinks, crazy as loons,
Giving you scraps of a hundred glad tunes;

Orioles, rolling out tones of delight,
Shaking the leaves as they flash through the white;

Catbirds a-mocking from over the wall,
Making the alders resound at each call;

Buzzing old bees that turn work into play,
Canning up sweets for some dull winter day;

Soft, dripping waters the log trough o'erflow,
Dark'ning the mosses close crowded below.

Wondering cows, looking up as they drink,
Plashing its brightness across the low brink;

Sweet growing things creeping up to the sight;
Fair, flying creature too gay to alight;

Far-away glints of a cowslip flecked green,
When the boughs sway, come like visions between.

Winding and turning, you follow the lane,
Flickering sunbeams a-falling like rain.

Where are you wandering? Never you heed,
When ways are pleasant, why ask where they lead?

—Paris gossip reports Gambetta to be in love with the daughter of a wealthy South American planter named Durand, who lives alternately in Paris and Nice. Figaro says: "Since Gambetta's first acquaintance with Miss Durand at Nice he has contrived it to be possible to meet her at all the soirees of the official world in Paris, especially those of President Grevy, with whom the Durand family stand in intimate relations." Mr. Durand is a Frenchman by birth. As a boy he emigrated to South America where he accumulated an immense fortune in the coffee trade. He is said to be one of the richest men in the world. He has three daughters, one of whom is married to the Swedish Count von Platen, who is an officer in the Scandinavian army. Mr. Durand married a Cuban lady.

A Lady Correspondent.

Mr. Editor:

In a recent issue of your paper, "Daisy B" writes to know what to do when she has the "blues." Now, I have been troubled with that very unpleasant and essentially feminine complaint in the past, and I am quite sure my experience will help her. I don't believe those indigo feelings come because things don't go right around us, but because matters don't go right within us. Every lady understands this and knows the cause. For years I suffered terribly, and I now see that I might have avoided it all had I known what I do to-day. I tried taking Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure as an experiment, and it did for me more than I could ever have dreamed it possible to do for any woman. I would not be without it for the world and I earnestly advise "Daisy B." or any lady troubled as she was, to use the means which I did and I am sure it will have the same effect.

—John Burroughs's experiment in introducing English skylarks into this country is not a success. He writes to Forest and Stream that two of the seven he imported died soon after arrival from the effects of lice, and that the five which he liberated have disappeared. He says he thinks that all efforts to introduce the larks will fail. The birds become dispersed and lost in our vast territory. The only way likely to succeed would be to liberate the birds on some island off our coast, where the climate would be more like that of Britain, say on Nantucket or Martha's Vineyard. The birds would not be so apt to lose each other and would probably plant a colony from which in time they would spread to the mainland.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

A Scientific Issue Taken by Others and of Little Comfort to the Adventists.

Some Matters of Great Importance Which are Occurring and Require Care.

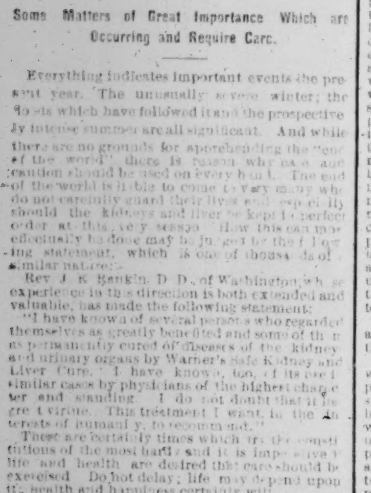

Everything indicates important events the present year. The unusually severe winter; the floods which have followed it and the prospective intense summer are all significant. And while there are no grounds for apprehending the "end of the world," there is reason why more than caution should be used on every hand. The end of the world is liable to come to very many who do not carefully guard their lives and especially should the kidneys and liver be kept in perfect order at this very season. How this can most effectually be done may be judged by the following statement, which is one of thousands of similar nature:

Rev. J. E. Rankin, D. D., of Washington, whose experience in this direction is both extended and valuable, has made the following statement:

"I have known of several persons who regarded themselves as greatly benefited and some of them as permanently cured of diseases of the kidney and urinary organs by Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I have known, too, of its use in similar cases by physicians of the highest character and standing. I do not doubt that it is a genuine virtue. This testimony I want, in the interests of humanity, to recommend."

These are certainly times which are the constitutions of the most hardy and it is impossible a life and health are desired the care should be exercised. Do not delay; life may depend upon it; health and happiness certainly will.

Shall the Building be Sold?

In order that our readers may fully understand the condition of the library, and the proposed sale of the library building which is to be voted on by the association on the 25th inst., we print the correspondence which has taken place in relation to the sale:

ATLANTA, GA., May 25, 1881.—Mr. Julius L. Brown, city—Dear Sir: We were appointed last evening by the new board to communicate with you in reference to the sale of the Young Men's library building.

We inclose you a copy of the resolutions under which we act.

In your last annual address we find this statement:

"As another evidence of the value of your property, I am prepared to say that I know a gentleman who will give—were the property for sale—$5,000 advance upon the cost of the lots and the money expended by the association upon them and will assume your bonded debt."

It is the opinion of the present board, considering the circumstances in which the association is placed, that it would be wise to accept the sum you mention.

We, therefore, have the honor to request you to furnish us with the name of the gentleman to whom you referred, and to give us your co-operation in bringing the negotiation to a successful issue.

We trust you will favor us with an answer immediately, as we are desired to make such a report on Friday evening next as will enable the board of directors to take final action. With the highest regards, very respectfully,

HOKE SMITH,
PAT CALHOUN,
J. T. BROCK.

ATLANTA, GA., May 27, 1881.—Hoke Smith, Pat Calhoun, J. T. Brock, Committee Y. M. L. A.—Gentlemen: Your communication of the 25th instant, including the following preamble and resolutions, passed at the first meeting of the new board of directors of the Y. M. L. A., to-wit:

"Whereas, In the annual report of ex-President Brown appears the following statement: As another evidence of the value of your property, I am prepared to say that I know a gentleman who will give—were the property for sale—$5,000 advance upon the cost of the lots and the money expended by the association upon them and will assume your bonded debt.

"Whereas, It is for the best interest of the library association that a sale take place according to the terms of said statement; therefore be it

"Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed by the president to communicate with ex-President Brown and to request him to give us the name of the gentleman to whom he referred.

"Resolved, further, That said committee be instructed to obtain, if possible, a proposition according to the terms of said statement, and to report the facts to an adjourned meeting to be held on the 27th day of May, 1881," is at hand.

You inform me that it is the opinion of the present board, "considering the circumstances in which the association is placed," that it would be wise to accept the sum, and that you have been appointed a committee to communicate with me in reference to the sale of the Young Men's Library building, and you request that I furnish you the name of the gentleman referred to, and you ask my co-operation in bringing the negotiation to a successful issue.

I have been too closely engaged since the reception of your communication to make an earlier reply to the matters contained in your communication. I trust, however, that the association has suffered no loss by this necessary delay.

I was not aware until the reception of your communication that any effort was being made by the board to sell the library building, or that any one seriously claimed that it was for sale. I am sure that the members of the association do not desire to sell it, as evidenced by their acts.

When I was nominated for president in 1879, I pledged myself in accepting the nomination, to do all that I could to have a building erected for the association during my term of office. Upon that platform, announced long in advance of the election, I was unanimously elected. In a short address delivered before the association at its anniversary meeting in August, 1879, I again announced that as my policy, and in my annual report to the association in 1880, I set forth fully and in detail to the members what had been done in furtherance of my pledge, and in accepting the nomination for president for a second term, I stated that under ordinary circumstances, I would not again be a candidate, but I would do so in that instance, as I desired to finish the work I had begun, and I was again elected president, receiving all the votes cast except one. And at the last annual meeting highly congratulatory resolutions were unanimously passed for my efforts in behalf of the building.

I mention these facts to show that the association time and again and within the past month have unanimously approved of my policy, and that it desired a permanent home.

We purchased the three lots on which the building stands very cheap, paying $2,500 cash for them. We bought them before the Brown block and other substantial improvements were made in that locality, and before the surrounding lots had advanced so much in value as evidenced by the prices at which surrounding lots are held and the increased assessment made upon them for taxes. To illustrate—for I deem it to be my duty to put you in full possession of all the facts—there is a lot 25 feet wide and 100 feet deep on the corner of Loyd and Decatur streets within seventy-five feet of the library and only one-third of its size. That lot has no improvements upon it and is the property of Judge L. E. Bleckley. I offered Judge Bleckley within the past ten days $6,250 cash for that lot, and he refused it. For a lot adjoining the library lot, and only one-third of their size, I paid L. C. Jones $4,000 in cash, being an advance of $1,500 more than the lot cost him. This fact I stated to the board when I notified its members that I had purchased the property and that I assumed all the obligations existing between Mr. Jones and the association, and I then remarked publicly that were the library private property and for sale, I would give an advance of $5,000 on its cost, assuming its bonded debt. And in my annual report I used the language quoted therein, giving it as an evidence of the correctness of our location. I am the gentleman to whom I referred in my annual report, as is well known to the members of the old board and to others. I made no offer for the property, as it was not for sale. In my report I said too plainly to be misunderstood that were the property for sale it could be sold for that. That property was not purchased and built upon for purposes of speculation or for sale. It was built and dedicated as a home for the library in accordance with the unanimous voice of the members of the association, expressed upon the occasions above referred to.

I know of nothing which has occurred since the annual meeting which has shown any change in the will of the association.

On the morning of the last annual election, when it was too late for those who opposed his policy to make any organization, Mr. Louis Gholstin, who had earnestly favored the policy of building upon the present site, and who had, without opposition, been nominated at the annual meeting the week previous to succeed me as president, made a publication in which he stated among other things: "I have determined to ask your support for the position of president, and if elected I shall favor the sale of the building to the gentleman who offers us the $5,000 advance, unless other means can be found by which to rid ourselves of our indebtedness, and place the association once more on a firm financial footing."

Mr. Gholstin had been with great unanimity elected vice-president with me for the two successive terms preceding, but when he ran upon the platform he had announced on the morning of the election, although as I am informed he and his friends were zealous in canvassing for votes, and although the custom has existed for years in the association to elect the vice-president to succeed the retiring president, he came within only thirty votes of being defeated in an election at which more votes were cast than in any previous election since the Hill-Burke contest in 1877, and that too, by a man who was not present at the election at any time, who was not a candidate, and who authorized such a statement to be made, and which was made in the newspaper and by parties who visited him.

In the face of so solemn and so earnest a protest, I must confess my surprise that any attempt to sell the property would be made by any board of directors without express authority being given to them by the members of the association at a full, fair and free election, of which due notice had been given. The property is well worth $5,000 more than it cost the association. As I desire to act perfectly fairly, frankly and openly with you and with the association, I will make a full statement of the reasons for my belief. By my acts in offering Judge Bleckley $6,250 for his lot, and in paying L. C. Jones $4,000 for his lot I have given the highest evidence that I believe the three library lots are worth $4,500 more than we paid for them. The architects, Parkins & Bruce, made no charge for the plans and specifications and for superintendence and that service was well worth $500. Mr. B. H. Broomhead made the walls from the top of the first story to the top of the building, four inches thicker than his contract called for, and he donated that to us; that work and material is worth at least $1,000. We hold obligations of adjoining owners to pay half the value of the side walls at the time those lots are built upon, and that is, I suppose, worth at least $1,000, if built on now. The contract was let at a time when all building was lower by fifteen per cent than it now is—as I am informed by contractors—making at least $3,000 gain in that.

In addition to the above, it is well known to every one that real estate has advanced very much within the past few days, owing to the certain building of three additional lines of railway into this city. The impetus thus given to the onward progress of the city is so great that it can scarcely be estimated. In ten years from to-day, I expect to see all well located real estate property in this city double in value upon present prices, and in this belief I am not alone. Besides this, within the past few days Messrs. Huff & Brown have offered if I would purchase the building, and my father and myself would convert it, together with the one hundred feet of other ground adjoining, which is owned by us, into a hotel, that they would lease it for a term of ten years and pay all taxes, insurance, repairs, etc., etc., and pay us seven per cent upon our investments. This is a tempting offer and almost induces me to overlook your want of direct authority to sell. For these reasons—and I give them fully that all may judge, because, as an officer of the association, I had much to do with erecting the building and in inducing friends to aid with their means, and I do not wish it said that I have concealed any fact. Were the property that of a private individual and of a nature proper to be sold, I would gladly give an advance of $5,000 on its cost, assuming on it the bonded debt. But I would not buy it from you, its directors, without an express authority given to you by the association at an election to be held for the purpose, at any price whatever. I would as soon speculate with the dissatisfied trustees of a church upon the purchase of a church building erected by the unanimous voice of the members. I have worked too long and too earnestly for the success and welfare of the library and the erection of that building to be the man to destroy it, to put money into his purse, by trading with its directors until they obtain the authority of the members to sell. I have never in the past made a single cent out of any public institution with which I have been connected, and it is too late for me now at this stage of my life to begin to speculate upon a public charity by trading with the directors thereof.

I made no offer at the time named, for the reason that the property was not for sale and was not built to sell and the association to whom the report was made did not then vote to sell, and inasmuch as so many members gave so earnest and so serious a protest to the sale of the building as they did give in the past election, when so large a number cast their votes against Mr. Gholstin for president upon his platform, I do not now make you any offer for the property. And as one of the members of the association, I deny your right to sell the property until you get special authority from the members of the association so to do, and I earnestly protest against its sale. I believe that the downfall of the association has begun when that building is sold. But if the members of the association, by a majority vote cast at an election held upon ten days published notice within the next ninety days, differ with me in the views I have expressed, and will give you special authority to sell the building, I will cheerfully pay the association five thousand dollars advance upon the cost of the building and the lots upon which it stands; and I will assume as a part of the cost the bonded debt, and hold the association harmless against it. So that the association will make $5,000 over and above the money it has paid out on account of the building.

In defense of myself and the gentlemen who acted with me upon the old board, I desire to further reply to your letter. You say in your communication, that considering the circumstances in which the association is placed, it would be wise to accept the sum and sell the building. Mr. Gholstin, in his card and also in his inaugural address, states in substance that the association is in great financial embarrassment. I suppose that the words "circumstances in which the association is placed," as used by you, mean the financial condition of the association as defined by Mr Gholstin. It is proper, therefore, that such part of your letter be considered by me, as the representative of the retiring board of directors. The president of the association as you well know, is, by its constitution, a member of the board of directors, with all the rights of any other member, save only the right to vote. That he can only do in case of a tie. He can propose measures just as any other member of the board, but he cannot vote for them. He is not a member of any standing committee. In point of fact he has less power than any other member of the board. He has no control over any committee, has no veto power of its action, no right to oversee any committee, call it to account, or require it to perform any duty whatsoever. If he has any such power as has been recently claimed, it is obtained from some other source than the constitution and by-laws of the association, for they do not give it to him. He has the constitutional right to be heard in the board meetings, and that right I frequently exercised when I was president, but he has no right to dictate to committees, or to hold them responsible elsewhere.

The work of the association can only be carried on successfully by zealous, earnest officers who will cheerfully give their time and attention to the work. I am not, therefore, responsible for the condition of the association, save as one of sixteen. It is in a very great financial troubles, which I deny.

In his card, Mr. Gholstin says: "The next administration (to-wit, the present one) will be confronted by a bonded debt of $15,000, by the interest for the past six months, which we have failed to pay, and by a floating debt of nearly a thousand dollars, and as the greater portion of our revenues up to the first of October has been collected and expended; it will be necessary to provide sufficient means to pay our running expenses and the additional interest up to the first of October. This amount will not be less than $1,500, so that we will be compelled to raise the sum of $3,000 to make up the deficiency."

I was not aware until I read the above statement that the bonds fell due during the present administration. When signed by me and when described in the deed of trust, in which Mr Gholstin is named as a trustee, they were due ten years after their date, or May 1, 1890. I was under the impression that unless paid off before that time, as I believe they will be, as the rents of the stores are pledged for that purpose, that they would confront the administration which would represent the association about nine years hence.

That bonded debt is no source of embarrassment to the present administration. The principal is not due, and so long as the association pays the interest for the rent of its present quarters, there can be no difficulty about it. It has been so often said that it is almost needless to repeat it again, that the interest on the bonds is now the same sum as the rents heretofore paid. If those bonds had not been issued the association would now be paying to Mr. W. D. Grant the same sum it now pays for interest, with no prospect of reduction, as exists in the case of the bonds and interest. This is too clear for intelligent men disposed to meet questions fairly, to further consider when all the facts are known, as they can be known by reference to the reports and my addresses upon your minutes. The May interest was not paid because the coupons were not presented, and the further reason that a large amount of extraordinary expense was incurred, as set forth in my annual report. The interest due October 1, 1881, will be provided for, I presume, just as the rents would have to be provided for were the association still a tenant of Mr. Grant, instead of owning the home. When I wrote my annual report I did not have the report of the finance committee—of which committee your present president was a member—before me, and that report was not read to the board until last Tuesday night. I had therefore to get the materials for that part of my report from the treasurer's report and from other sources. In my report I showed that there was due from members $1,281—the finance committee's report shows that sum to be correct—from the trustees for insurance advanced $112 50. I omitted to state that the association owned a Howard ladies watch worth at the factory $80. After that report was written, and before I left the presidency, seventeen new members were elected and five renewed their membership, making $63.3 additional, due from them, and the entertainment committee reported that it had realized $69.65 from the Angier concert.

The secretary's report made at the last meeting shows that the amount due the treasurer had been reduced from the date of his and my report to $31.24, and that he held in his hand a $25 bond of Trinity church.

At the time I left the presidency the financial condition of the association, as appears from all the reports made to that date, was about as follows:

LIABILITIES.

Due treasurer	$ 31 24
Porter & Meakin	403 63
Hunnicutt & Bellingrath	38 58
Interest on bonds (rent)	450 00
Disputed bill of CONSTITUTION, contracted by Director Smith and others, of which Mr. Finch agrees to pay one half, leaving still in dispute	75 00
	$1,000 45
Warrants outstanding and unpaid, reported at last meeting by secretary	320 03
Total liabilities	$1,320 48

ASSETS.

Due from members ($1,281x62.31—$1,303 35 less amount collected and reported by secretary, $212 35)	$1,091 00
Due from trustees	112 50
In hands of secretary	139 35
Proceeds of Angier concert	69 65
Gold watch	80 00
Trinity bond	25 00
	$1,518 00

or, $197.52 more than enough to pay all the debts due.

It is said in Mr. Gholstin's statement that the greater portion of the revenues up to October, 1881, had been collected and expended. The impression sought to be created is that since April 1, 1881, an unusual proportion of the dues were collected. The incorrectness of the statement is made apparent from a brief consideration of the annual report of the library committee from the year 1877, the first year any report is made upon the subject, to this date. Those reports are upon your minutes.

In 1877, the first year any report was made upon the subject, there were 700 active members, of whom 331 had paid dues to October 1, 1877, leaving the dues of 369 or $738 to be collected to pay the expenses. In 1878 there were 621 active members, of whom 342 had paid dues to October 1, 1878, leaving the dues of 279 or $558 to be collected.

In 1879, the first year of my administration, there were 615 active members, of whom 362 had paid dues to October 1, 1879, leaving the dues of less than one half of the members, or of 283, or $566 to be collected. In 1880, there were 554 active members, of whom 257 had paid dues to October 1, 1880, leaving the dues of 297 members, or $594, with which to pay all the expenses of the association. In 1881, at our last annual meeting, there were due from members, as shown by the report of the finance committee referred to $1,281, a sum more than twice as much as was due in any one year save 877. So much for that statement. When I left the presidency I left 855 members on its rolls, a number far greater than it ever before had, but much less than it should have.

In Mr Gholstin's statement referred to, he says, so that we will be compelled to raise the sum of $3,000 to make up the deficiency to October 1, 1881. To me, and to many members of the association that is startling news. There is no reason why every dollar due from members should not be collected. Who is there that will not pay? Will the board publish their names for our information, and that of others concerned? I believe that every member will pay what he owes, if the present board will work and take the proper steps to collect it. There is no reason also why the other assets left by me should not be collected. If this is done there should be $197.52 in the treasury after paying the debts left by my administration made necessary by the extraordinary expenses made on the purpose, as detailed in my annual report. Now, why should it take $3,000, as stated by Mr. Gholstin, to carry on the library until October 1?

Let us examine that statement and see how it stands. By the terms of my resolution the salaries of the librarian and his assistant are cut down to one hundred dollars per month for the ensuing year. To October 1, 1881, was 4 months and six days from the time the new board went into office.

The salaries would be	$420
Interest on bonds (rent) [This, however, is not due until November 1, 1881	450
Incidentals, as per usual warrant	40
Lights	60
Ice, &c	30
James Postell's salary	150
Total	$1,150

I have made the estimates liberal and can only figure $1,150 for the necessary expenses of the association. Deduct the $197.52, and on October 1, 1881, the association should not owe more than $952.48; at the outside say $1,000, or $2,000 less than Mr. Gholstin states, and this, too, if the directors do not work and do not add a single new member. If they do work there is no reason why the association should not pay off the debt and have money in its treasury on October 1, 1881.

If the directors will work there is no reason why money should not be made from lectures, from concerts, from a loan collection, and from other devices. The present administration has the best opportunity this year to make money from these sources than any one has ever had in the past. The large number of strangers who will visit the cotton exposition will need to be entertained and amused, and if the board will do its duty large revenues will result. Will you seize upon the opportunity?

Actuated by these views, I see no reason for alarm, as any body of men who have any financial ability can easily handle the present debt. The association is in better condition than it has ever been, and is to-day nearer self-sustaining than it has ever been in its history, as I showed in my last annual report.

You ask for my co-operation in making a sale of the building. I cannot give that until you get special authority to sell it by special vote of its owners, as I have hereinbefore stated. When that is done I am willing to purchase upon the terms I have named. I shall not canvass the matter one way or the other. My judgment is that the sale of the building would be the commencement of the downfall of the library. But if a majority of its members think differently after hearing my views as herein set forth, and determine to sell, then I shall be glad to buy. It is for them, not you, to decide.

I shall be glad to co-operate with you and with the other members of the association in anything which will aid in building up the association, and in making it what the founders intended it should be. I shall endeavor in all such things to do my full share in future, as I have always done in the past.

I have written at this length in reply to your communication in order that the association might have all the facts, and that the gentlemen who acted with me, and myself might not be put in any false light before the association, and I ask that you place this reply upon your minutes.

With best wishes for the future success of the association, I remain yours very respectfully,

JULIUS L. BROWN.

—The New York Musical and Dramatic Courier says that Mme. Gerster signed a contract with a prominent manager on the steamer just before sailing for Europe. The terms agreed upon are $1,000 nightly, the season to begin on November 25. Mme. Gerster will sing in concert through the south until December 12, at which date she will appear in opera at New Orleans. In March she will be at McVicker's theater, Chicago. It is said that the same manager has engaged Campanini for next season.

"I Don't Want a Plaster,"

said a sick man to a druggist, "can't you give me something to cure me?" His symptoms were a lame back and disordered urine, and were a sure indication of kidney disease. The druggist told him to use Kidney-Wort, and in a short time it effected a complete cure. Have you these symptoms? Then get a box or bottle to-day—before you become incurable. It is the cure; safe and sure.—Knoxville Republican.

A Live Merchant and a Place of Active Business.

We have heard many of our business men during the last ten days, complain that trade was dull. These gentlemen looked as if they felt the full force of the declaration in their own business. But there is one merchant and one house in Atlanta, bearing constant evidences that trade is not dull everywhere. If there be no other exception, it may certainly be found with Mr. W. H. Brotherton, and in his splendid establishment, at the corner of Whitehall and Mitchell streets. This competent merchant is always at his post, surrounded with a score of active clerks who are pressed all the while with the demands of customers. A scene of activity ... is there from day to day, and week to week—crowds come and go continually, bearing away the bargains obtained from this place of bargains. There never was a swarm of bees kept more thoroughly busy than the salesmen at Mr. Brotherton's, and their labors are fruitful, for it is seldom that a visitor leaves without making some purchase.

Large capital, a familiar acquaintance with the details of his business, good taste in the selection, and good sense in the purchase of his stocks, together with a reputation for fair dealing, secure Mr. Brotherton a large and constantly increasing trade.

There is no house in Atlanta that is better adapted to an extensive business in the line of staple and fancy dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, hats, etc. It was planned by the proprietor for his own purposes, and built with his own money under his direct supervision. There is plenty of room for the division of his business into the proper departments, and this has been elegantly accomplished. Goods are all properly arranged so that clerks can place their hands upon any desired article in a moment, and not detain customers unnecessarily. Receptacles of fine and fancy goods have been provided at large expense, and the establishment in all of its appointments is a model which has not yet been equaled in this city.

John Keely.

The utterly impressible! Just back from New York, has had the sidewalk littered, almost so as to impede travel, for the past few days with cases of goods. "Bargains" seem to be friend Keely's hobby, but it is one which pays.

His sales on the five last days of the week were something stupendous—but why should they not be? He has the largest stock in Atlanta, and he has the happy faculty of purchasing goods cheaper than anybody, and, then, he is willing to work cheap! His attractions offered in to-day's issue are wonderful, and there seems to be no limit so variety, class of goods, or quantity.

He tells us he sold 173 Ladies' Ready-made Suits on Saturday! This speaks volumes for their beauty and cheapness. Keely's house was reported as a nuisance last week for blockading the sidewalk, but we think that it is a very pardonable offense to stop travel somewhat in order to mark off and offer to the public such "Bargains" as they seldom meet with.

We predict for the Captain a perfect "Boom" this week. He is ready to meet hosts of purchasers. Let him have such a patronage as he merits, say we!

Some apprehension has been expressed about the capacity of the city to accommodate the visitors to the International cotton exposition, commencing on the 5th October. Atlanta has never failed to meet any emergency yet and must not fail in this. I take it for granted that all the hotels, boarding houses and restaurants will be filled to their utmost capacity. The surplus can be provided for thus: Many families in the city can accommodate a number of persons besides invited guests, and charge them say, $2 per day for board and lodging. No doubt many persons who, under ordinary circumstances, would not take boarders, will do so in this emergency. I will open a book in my office on the first of July when persons who will entertain can register name, locality and number of guests they can accommodate. The villages on each railroad as far out as Covington, Gainesville, Griffin, Newnan and Cartersville can each register, and the railroads giving cheap fare can accommodate that way. It is a duty, and I feel confident our citizens, who are always alive to any plan to benefit and build up the city, will not be remiss in this most important one. I give this timely notice that persons who can do so may be making the necessary arrangements to comply with the request.

G. W. ADAIR,
Chief Department Public Comfort International Cotton Exposition.

James W. Daniell.

James W. Daniell has returned to Mobile, Ala., leaving his handsome variety store, 72 Whitehall street, in charge of Mr. C. P. Murray. Mr Daniell has left the business in good hands, and on his return will find the great popularity of his house increased by the polite and business-like way in which Mr Murray will conduct matters. The store is filled with a variety of beautiful goods, embracing willowware, stationery, picture frames, vases, brackets, musical instruments and toys, which are going at bottom figures. The five and ten cent counters are also popular departments of the establishment.

The north store under the "Young Men's Library building," Decatur street, has been occupied by the Atlanta Auction company, conducted under the personal management of Mr. W. B. Burke—a first-class house in all its appointments. Their first sale takes place Tuesday, June 14th. A rare chance is offered for parties to dispose of their surplus merchandise, furniture or any effects they desire to sell. The entire stock of this company is owned by Atlanta citizens. A resident New York buyer is employed who looks up "job lots." Bargains always on hand. See their advertisement.

A. O. M. Gay's Live Clothing Store, 37 Peachtree Street.

We take great pleasure in calling the attention of the public to the splendid stock of clothing kept by Mr. A. O. M. Gay at 37 Peachtree street. There is nothing in the line of men's and boy's ready-made clothing which cannot be supplied at this live establishment. Then the prices are always an inducement which should not be despised. We have taken the trouble to compare his goods and his prices with other houses in the city, and we do not hesitate to say, "Go to Gay's for bargains."

There is another advantage in trading with Mr. Gay, especially if you are not skilled in detecting the quality of goods, and that is, when he represents any article he will tell you the truth—"and nothing but the truth." He has been in this city many years, and all who know him will bear testimony to the fact that he is an honest, conscientious gentleman and a competent merchant. It is, indeed, a pleasure to trade with a gentleman of his character.

This store is in the very heart of the city, so that you will have no difficulty in reaching it, and when you get there you will know it by the cordial reception given and the gentlemanly deportment of proprietor and clerks. Go to Gay's for bargains.

Atlanta Health Institute

THE ONLY SCIENTIFICALLY CONDUCTED Water Cure and Hygienic Medical Institute in the Southern States where the invalid sick are restored to permanent health with Normal Processes and Physiological or health-inducing agents and means. Over TWO THOUSAND PATIENTS, after having faithfully tried the "deadly virtues of the healing art," only to grow yearly worse, have by our methods of treatment been entirely restored to health. Not a particle of disease-producing drug-nostrums or medical poisons used. Unprecedented success in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Heart, Liver, Kidney, and Skin Diseases, Incipient Consumption, Scrofula, Paralysis, all Diseases Peculiar to the Reproductive Organs, and all kinds of Malarial Diseases—Intermittent, Remittent, Typhoid, Eruptive and other Fevers.

Restoration to health is accomplished by Purifying and Renovating the Organism, and thus the causes of disease are removed from the system. In like manner are Mercurial and other Secondary Diseases entirely eradicated by having the taints and viruses expelled from the blood, and the person rendered pure and whole.

Exclusive Ladies' Department (on first floor) superintended by Mrs. U. O. Robertson, M. D., graduate of the Woman's Medical College, Chicago, and of the Hygeio-Therapeutic College, New York—the only properly qualified Lady Physician in this city. Her success can be attested to by hundreds of ladies who have failed to recover under some of the most noted Specialists of old school physicians in this and other States.

Our Therapeutical Reliances constitute various kinds of Galvano-Electric Baths, the celebrated Swedish Movement Processes, Hygienic Agencies and Surgical Appliances.
